Solon Urges Sale of Stock In Satellites

NEW YORK (AP)—Sen. Kenneth B. Keating, R-N.Y., urged today that stock in a government-sponsored communications satellite corporation be sold for as little as $25 so average Americans could share the program.

Keating said President Kennedy's proposal that the stock be sold in $1,000 denominations would limit the program to the very rich.

"I hate to see the President limit participation in the space communication program to millionaires, when I am sure a lot of less prosperous but equally patriotic and equally space-minded citizens would love to have a chance to support the idea, too," he said.

Convertible debentures might be sold for as little as $25 apiece, Keating said in an address for the Women's Press Club of New York.

Keating said he proposed last year that the government issue space bonds, but the Treasury objected it would mean bookkeeping problems.

Keating said he has asked the National Aeronautics and Space Administration and the National Space Council to work out a plan under which small investors could buy shares in the corporation.

Kennedy has asked Congress to charter a communications satellite corporation to build space stations to relay messages all over the world.

Urban Renewal Official Due Here Monday

Stanley L. Heronemus, field representative for the Urban Renewal Agency, will be in Circleville Monday for a conference with city officials.

Heronemus will meet with various city heads at 1 p. m. in the Council Chambers at City Hall. The general outline and operation of Urban Renewal will be discussed.

Mayor Richard Penn said the meeting will not be closed. He said all interested persons are invited to attend.

Mayor Penn said he hopes as many city officials as possible will attend the session, although the meeting was announced on short notice.

THE MAYOR announced his interest in Urban Renewal about three weeks ago. Since that time he has made efforts to bring UR representatives here for the purpose of explaining the program to officials and the public.

Tentative plans call for Heronemus to return to Circleville in the near future for further explanation of the Urban Renewal program. Adequate notice will be given to the general public when the meeting is arranged, Mayor Penn said.

Heronemus, from the UR Agency's Chicago office, is scheduled for a conference in Chillicothe on Tuesday. While in this area, he agreed to come to Circleville on Monday.

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—A 60-year-old Troy antique collector who went to prison three years ago for embezzling $373,663 will be going back to Ohio Penitentiary soon — this time for embezzling $81 while in prison.

Daniel O. Tobias, paroled from a 2-to-14 year term last Nov. 9, was rearrested and indicted when prison officials discovered a discrepancy in his accounts as a clerk. He pleaded guilty to the charge in Franklin County Common Pleas Court Friday and received a 1-to-10 year sentence.

Bob Bowsher Trophy Awarded To Ashville's Tom Rathburn

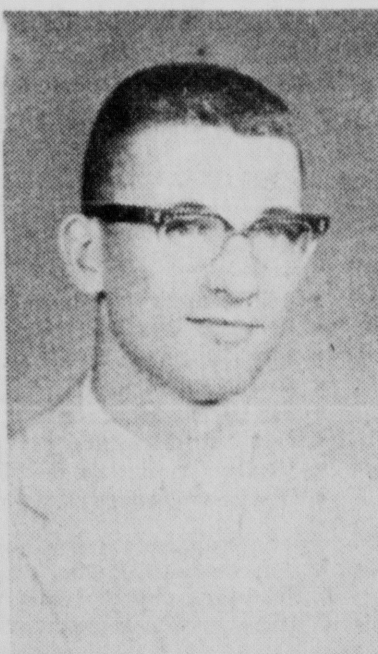

Tom Rathburn, the brilliant young cager from Ashville, was awarded the Bob Bowsher Trophy last night following the final game of the Pickaway County basketball tournament.

The recipient of the Award is decided by a secret vote of the county coaches. They base their vote not only on the players' overall ability but also on his sportsmanlike attitude on the playing floor.

Rathburn, a 17-year-old senior, is an outstanding example of all the qualities needed to be chosen the winner of the Bob Bowsher Trophy.

His four year basketball record is phenomenal. He has amassed a total of 1,575 points in 85 games for an average of 18 per outing.

AS A FRESHMAN Tom averaged 12.1 points per game. During his sophomore season he played in 28 games. The team reached the finals of the regional tournament at Troy, before being dumped

Damage Is Minor In City, County

No injury accidents or serious property damage was reported here as a result of the ice and rain that glazed highways, trees and almost everything exposed to the weather last night.

Utility wires downed by the added weight of ice and fallen tree limbs throughout the county kept workers busy all night.

The city escaped power failures that were reported in many other sections of Ohio. E. G. Parsons, manager of the local office of the Columbus & Southern Ohio Electric Co., said today that only four homes in the city were without electricity. "These were all restored by early morning," he said.

Wires were reported down in several outlying sections of the county. South Central REA workers were kept busy throughout the night tracing power lines for breaking points.

PETE NOBLE, REA representative, said today that the hardest hit section was in the northwestern part of the county. "Orient and Commercial Point areas have been without service since about 9 last night," he said, "but we expect to have the lines repaired sometime this afternoon."

Noble also said that calls were coming in at a steady rate from the Williamsport area early this morning. Hocking County lines were beginning to break under the strain of the ice, he added.

The REA spokesman reported, "We'll work until all the lines are repaired, we've been at it all night and expect to have all service restored before the day's over."

Local law enforcement agencies were kept busy assisting public utilities and investigating minor accidents on the slippery streets and highways. Minor damages were reported when a tree limb fell onto an auto at 142 York St. The vehicle is owned by William O. Hall, 463 1/2 Watt St.

The Sheriff's Department reported that another auto, parked on Brown St. was slightly damaged when a tree limb fell on it.

All streets and highways in the county are passable, but remain slippery in spots according to the State Highway Patrol. Motorists are advised to drive with extreme caution.

President's Brother Appears at Border

BERLIN (AP)—Robert F. Kennedy wound up his two-day morale-building visit to West Berlin today by confronting armed East German policemen at Checkpoint Charlie. The policemen grinned sheepishly and took his picture.

The U. S. attorney general stopped briefly at the checkpoint, the only place in the Red wall dividing the city where the Communists allow foreigners in and out of East Berlin, on his way to the airport. He took off later for Bonn with his wife, Ethel, and his younger brother, Edward.

The street on the Communist side of the checkpoint was empty except for East German guards and a group of East German photographers when the Kennedy motorcade arrived.

The other side was crowded with West Berliners who only moments before had greeted a Soviet staff car with jeers and boos. At the sight of Kennedy, they broke into cheers and began chanting, "Come back soon Bobby!"

West Berlin Mayor Willy Brandt pointed out to Kennedy where Soviet and American tanks faced one another across the barricades at the checkpoint last October.

Kennedy then walked up to within inches of the white line marking the border. Two East German police officers with cameras grinned sheepishly at Kennedy, but no words were exchanged.

Across the wall, a score of East Berliners in an apartment block waved from their windows. Kennedy waved back.

Two small West Berlin boys presented Kennedy flowers. Behind them another group of children carried a placard saying, "Kennedy, Johnson, Clay, all of them okay."

"Johnson" was a slightly misspelled tribute to Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson, who also received a tumultuous welcome when he visited West Berlin last August.

Gen. Lucius D. Clay is President Kennedy's personal representative in Berlin.

William Cecil Liles, 44, of near by Norwalk and Natalie Louise Burton, 44, Los Angeles, had pleaded that they thought it was a juvenile prank when their call was interrupted. Similar pranks, they testified, had happened before.

Southwest Area Is Paralyzed; Power Cut Off

10-Inch Accumulation White Stuff Plagues Northeastern Region

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS Most of Ohio lay under crippling ice and snow today from one of the worst winter storms the Buckeye State has seen in years.

The southwestern fourth of the state was nearly paralyzed by Friday night's downpour of ice and sleet. The northern half was digging out of snow which accumulated up to 10 inches.

Only the southeast fourth of the state was relatively spared, but there heavy rains sent streams to their banks.

The front moved into the state late Friday and quickly locked up highway traffic.

In the ice area which stretched from the Ohio River Valley to just north of U.S. 40, thousands of power lines were down, hospitals were using emergency supplies, trees toppled, utility poles snapped and live wires started hundreds of minor fires.

In Columbus, Dayton, Springfield and smaller communities motorists dodged fallen limbs; street lights failed; communications were disrupted.

North of U.S. 40 a near-blinding snowstorm caused motorists to leave their cars in the downtown areas of many cities and struggle homeward on foot.

Ohio Senators Heap Praise On Astronaut

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sens. Frank Lausche and Stephen M. Young swelled with native pride—and let the Senate have some expressions of it—after John Glenn of Ohio became the free world's first orbiting astronaut.

"I hope my fellow senators will not deem me vain if I take this occasion to make brief mention of the contributions Ohio has made to science, literature, Art, government, economy and the social evolution of our nation," Lausche said in the Senate.

Then he proceeded to call the roll of illustrious Ohioans from Johnny Appleseed to Astronaut Glenn — including the Wright Brothers, the man who wrote McGuffey's reader, and Presidents Grant, Garfield, Harding, Hayes, Harrison, McKinley and Taft.

"To stand at the head of a long list of illustrious and distinguished Ohioans now comes (Lt.) Col. John Glenn," he said.

Then Young arose to pay tribute to the Marine officer from New Concord, Ohio. He said, "as long as mankind exists on this planet, yesterday (Tuesday) will be remembered not only as a milestone in man's continuing thirst for knowledge, but as a day when the best in freedom, democracy and an open society was displayed to the world."

Glenn Family in Seclusion With More Honors Waiting

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)—Astronaut John H. Glenn Jr.—his name a household word and his face familiar to schoolchildren—sought seclusion today. Few Americans, including the President of the United States, would blame him.

For nearly three months he has been in the public eye.

But in something more than four fantastic hours Tuesday, he faced his grim task, and by his skill and the help of men of skill on the ground below, he accomplished it.

Friday he returned full circle to the place where his struggle was born, to Cape Canaveral and to Pad 14 where his Atlas rocket was launched and to Mercury Control where his friends and compatriots had waited and hoped for his safe return.

Probably the squeals and cheers of Cocoa Beach schoolchildren still ring in his ears—and the questions of newsmen and the glaring lights of television cameras are still in the recent thrush-hold of memory.

But there, too, is the first look on the face of his wife, Anna, as he stepped from the plane that brought him to Patrick Air Force Base. And still he must remember the look of expectancy in the eyes of his daughter, Lyn, 14, and his son, David, 16, as he disembarked.

He must remember, too, the pride and interest David had as he peered into the heart of the spaceship that had carried his father three times around the world in a frenzied orbit through space.

Glenn could probably remember something of his own words as he explained the equipment dangling, now almost uselessly, inside.

"Our boosters may not be as large as some others," President Kennedy had said, "but our men and women are."

The President had made the remark before presenting Glenn with the National Aeronautics and Space Administration Distinguished Service Medal.

Monday, after his weekend with his family somewhere, Glenn will return to Washington for a motorcade at 11:15 a.m. from the White House to the Capitol. There he will address a joint session of the House of Representatives and the Senate.

Tuesday, he speaks to the House Space Committee at a critical time—when the space budget is submitted.

Wednesday he speaks to the Senate Space Committee.

Then on Thursday he will ride in a ticker-tape parade up Broad way in New York City.

Lashley Quads Now 21 Years Old

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — The Lashley quadruplets planned today to celebrate their birthdays quietly—a far cry from the excitement they generated when born on a snowy February day 21 years ago.

The quads, John, Beulah, Mildred and Martine Lashley, were born 21 years ago Friday, but waited until today to observe the occasion quietly at a relative's home near Bowling Green.

The celebration "will just be a family affair," they said. Porter Lashley, their father, still lives on his farm near Leitchfield. John lives on his father's farm and the three girls in Louisville.

The quads are still single, and as Martine said, "We're still playing the field."

U.S. Education Said To Be Fooling Public

ST. LOUIS, Mo. (AP)—American education needs new and higher goals, and a good start would be to "stop fooling students and the public about what an education is."

Warren G. Hill, state commissioner of education from Maine, had that blunt message for a national convention of high school principals today.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sens. Frank Lausche and Stephen M. Young lauded with native pride—and let the Senate have some expressions of it—after John Glenn of Ohio became the free world's first orbiting astronaut.

"I hope my fellow senators will not deem me vain if I take this occasion to make brief mention of the contributions Ohio has made to science, literature, Art, government, economy and the social evolution of our nation," Lausche said in the Senate.

Then he proceeded to call the roll of illustrious Ohioans from Johnny Appleseed to Astronaut Glenn — including the Wright Brothers, the man who wrote McGuffey's reader, and Presidents Grant, Garfield, Harding, Hayes, Harrison, McKinley and Taft.

"To stand at the head of a long list of illustrious and distinguished Ohioans now comes (Lt.) Col. John Glenn," he said.

Then Young arose to pay tribute to the Marine officer from New Concord, Ohio. He said, "as long as mankind exists on this planet, yesterday (Tuesday) will be remembered not only as a milestone in man's continuing thirst for knowledge, but as a day when the best in freedom, democracy and an open society was displayed to the world."

Glenn Family in Seclusion With More Honors Waiting

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)—Astronaut John H. Glenn Jr.—his name a household word and his face familiar to schoolchildren—sought seclusion today. Few Americans, including the President of the United States, would blame him.

For nearly three months he has been in the public eye.

But in something more than four fantastic hours Tuesday, he faced his grim task, and by his skill and the help of men of skill on the ground below, he accomplished it.

Friday he returned full circle to the place where his struggle was born, to Cape Canaveral and to Pad 14 where his Atlas rocket was launched and to Mercury Control where his friends and compatriots had waited and hoped for his safe return.

Probably the squeals and cheers of Cocoa Beach schoolchildren still ring in his ears—and the questions of newsmen and the glaring lights of television cameras are still in the recent thrush-hold of memory.

But there, too, is the first look on the face of his wife, Anna, as he stepped from the plane that brought him to Patrick Air Force Base. And still he must remember the look of expectancy in the eyes of his daughter, Lyn, 14, and his son, David, 16, as he disembarked.

He must remember, too, the pride and interest David had as he peered into the heart of the spaceship that had carried his father three times around the world in a frenzied orbit through space.

Glenn could probably remember something of his own words as he explained the equipment dangling, now almost uselessly, inside.

"Our boosters may not be as large as some others," President Kennedy had said, "but our men and women are."

The President had made the remark before presenting Glenn with the National Aeronautics and Space Administration Distinguished Service Medal.

Monday, after his weekend with his family somewhere, Glenn will return to Washington for a motorcade at 11:15 a.m. from the White House to the Capitol. There he will address a joint session of the House of Representatives and the Senate.

Tuesday, he speaks to the House Space Committee at a critical time—when the space budget is submitted.

Wednesday he speaks to the Senate Space Committee.

Then on Thursday he will ride in a ticker-tape parade up Broadway in New York City.

Bob Bowsher Trophy Awarded To Ashville's Tom Rathburn

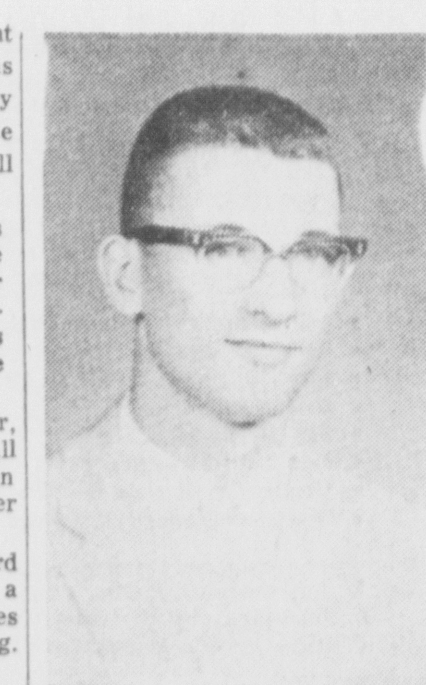

Tom Rathburn, the brilliant young cager from Ashville, was awarded the Bob Bowsher Trophy last night following the final game of the Pickaway County basketball tournament.

The recipient of the Award is decided by a secret vote of the county coaches. They base their vote not only on the players' overall ability but also on his sportsmanlike attitude on the playing floor.

Rathburn, a 17-year-old senior, is an outstanding example of all the qualities needed to be chosen the winner of the Bob Bowsher Trophy.

His four year basketball record is phenomenal. He has amassed a total of 1,575 points in 85 games for an average of 18 per outing.

AS A FRESHMAN Tom averaged 12.1 points per game. During his sophomore season he played in 28 games. The team reached the finals of the regional tournament at Troy, before being dumped from the tournament trail by Salem Local, the state champs that year. Tom scored 478 points for an average of 17 points per game. Last year he played in 21 games and scored 447 points for a game average of 21. Again Ashville was knocked out of a tourney competition by a Madison South team that made it to the state finals.

In 20 games Tom has played this year, including the county tournament, he has accumulated a total of 397 points for a game average of 19.4.

During the last four years, the outstanding cager has picked off 1,068 rebounds for a game average of 12.

He has made the All-Darby Valley league team for the past two years and is a cinch to land a berth on the mythical team again this year.

He has also been a member of the All-County team for the past two years, and was awarded that honor again last night by the Pickaway County coaches.

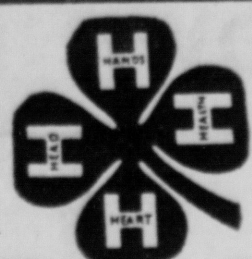

TOM'S playing record is even more remarkable when considered. (Continued on Page 5)

4-H Club News

By EDWIN D. TAYLOR
County Extension Agent, 4-H

About 86,723 youths in Ohio will observe National 4-H Club Week March 3 to 10. The young people are among the 2,296,000 4-H'ers who belong to about 93,000 clubs in urban, suburban and rural areas throughout the United States.

Ohio has an enrollment of 86,723 4-H members. Pickaway County has 812.

The highlights of activities for Pickaway County will be the 4-H banquet which gives recognition to the 4-H advisers for their services during the past year. Clubs will prepare window displays in many local merchants' windows. Many clubs also will hold their organization meeting during this week.

The week has a number of local and national aims. Included are: To give members a chance to measure progress and set new goals; influence more youth to join or form 4-H clubs; acquaint more parents with the organization and enlist their aid; encourage more persons to volunteer as local leaders; stress learning to live and serve cooperatively with others; and recognize the major part played by friends of 4-H.

THE WEEK will be highlighted in Washington D. C. by a team of everywhere, who will give the annual "4-H Report to the Nation". The report will review in story and pictures outstanding 4-H achievements and current projects.

While in the Nation's Capital, the reporter - delegates will visit the White House, meet members of Congress, high government officials and other national leaders. After a short stay, they expect to go

Facts Leaflet Helps Explain Feed Grain

Farmers should study how participation in the 1962 Feed Grain Program will affect their net farm income, according to Agriculture Extension Agent George Hamrick.

Under provisions of the program, Hamrick said farmers will receive payments for diverting to conservation use 20 to 40 per cent of their feed grain acreages. In addition, feed grain crops raised on remaining land will be eligible for price supports.

So farmers have several alternatives on extent of participation. Each alternative will have a different effect on their net income, the agent added.

Budget forms are included in an Extension Facts Leaflet "1962 Feed Grain Program." It is available at the County Extension office.

Farmers can use the information and forms in estimating net income whether or not they participate in the program. By comparing these estimates, they will have a factual basis for making their decision, Hamrick said.

3 Ohio Cities Commended For Cleanup Campaigns

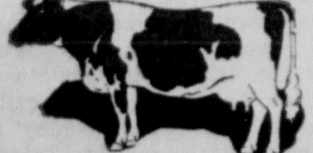

WASHINGTON (AP) — Memphis, Tenn., was awarded today the Ernest T. Trigg Trophy, top award in the 1961 national cleanest town contest sponsored by the National Clean Up-Paint Up-Fix Up Bureau.

This is the fourth time that Memphis has won the trophy, first awarded in 1948.

The following Ohio cities were awarded certificates of achievement: Cincinnati, Mount Vernon and South Euclid.

LAWN FERTILIZATION practices greatly affect the need for lime. For every pound of nitrogen applied as ammonium sulfate, five pounds of lime are required to maintain soil reaction (acidity or alkalinity) at a given level.

SOME OHIO farmers are using rubber mats in place of bedding for their cows, according to Ohio State University Extension Dairy specialists.

SCIENTISTS of the U. S. Department of Agriculture have learned that soil treatment and cultivation will reduce fallout levels. Should fallout contaminate a limited area, it can be completely removed by scraping off a few inches of soil.

AN EXPERIMENTAL wall panel, made of a 2-inch layer of plastic sandwiched between half-inch layers of reinforced portland cement, has been developed by USDA agricultural engineers for use in constructing farm buildings.

IN THE 1960's, a milk cow yielding more than 4,000 pounds of milk per year was exceptional. Average production per cow now is more than 7,000 pounds yearly.

The U. S. Weather Bureau's temperature - humidity index can be used to estimate summer declines in milk production by dairy cattle, USDA state research has shown.

PERSONAL SAVINGS last year reached the highest level since World War II at 25.7 billion dollars, or seven per cent of disposable personal income, according to Ohio State University Extension Economists.

THE OHIO 4-H Club Foundation provides scholarships, fellowships and training meetings for 4-H club members, advisers and junior leaders under the auspices of the Ohio State University.

Soil Testing Similar to Bank Accounts

By GEORGE HAMRICK
County Extension Agent,
Agriculture

How is your soil bank account? The only way to find out whether you are overdrawn on soil nutrient account is to have soils tested.

If farmers continue to write checks on their bank account without making a deposit, his checks will soon be bouncing. Any successful businessman knows that this eventually will lead to bankruptcy.

Yet, many Pickaway County farmers are overdrawn on their soil bank account and are failing to balance this account by application of the proper amounts of line and fertilizer according to soil test recommendations.

Your bank statement tells whether you are overdrawn on the bank account or whether there is a cash surplus. A soil test report gives similar information.

IT TELLS the level of lime, phosphate and potash in soils and recommends the necessary amounts of lime and fertilizer to correct any unbalanced soil conditions for economic crop production.

Do not be overdrawn on your soils account. Find out soil fertility level by having a soil test made.

Then you can correct any unbalanced fertility conditions by following through on the soil test line for profitable crop yields.

Soil Tests Will Determine Various Fertilizer Needs

By GEORGE HAMRICK
County Extension Agent,
Agriculture

An ample supply of plant food in the proper balance is the key to maximum production at lowest cost.

Since the growing crop will draw its total plant food from the soil and from added fertilizer, these two sources must be combined or matched so as to give the plant just what it needs.

Soils vary in the amounts of plant food they will furnish, and only a soil test will tell how much. With this information, the amount of fertilizer needed can be determined.

Proper fertilization of all crops is being given special emphasis in this county now, as a step in increasing farm income this year.

NEVER has it been so important that every possible effort be made to produce higher yields. Farmers can increase their incomes very substantially by following a program of soil testing and improved fertilization.

Plants have appetites just as you and farm animals do. But, unfortunately, plants can't vary their available foods at will to match their appetites for a balanced diet.

This is where you, as an alert farmer, can enter the picture. You don't have to wait until your crops show ring-streaked, speckled, spotted signs and blotchy discoloration. You can get help beforehand, by having a soil test to detect nutrient deficiencies even before you plant your crops.

A soil test will help to determine how much and what kind

Mechanization In Dairy Industry Is Prediction

More mechanization in dairying and improved herd management and feeding during the 1960's are predicted by John C. Thompson, nationally known dairy authority and manager of dairy research for the Ralston Purina Co.

Thompson feels that breeding continues ahead of feeding and management in most herds. The rapid development of artificial insemination of dairy cattle has made available the best bloodlines of every breed to all dairymen, regardless of where they live, according to Thompson.

Advancements toward better feeding and more mechanization in dairying are already evident, he says. Much recent college and commercial research has led more and more authorities to encourage heavier grain feeding so that the breeding capacity of today's animals may be utilized.

Experiments with self-feeding the milking herd have opened up possibilities in dairy mechanization. Research is in progress at the Purina Research Farm in Missouri with milking cows eating a complete ration from commercial type self-feeders in dry lot. They are given no hay, silage or pasture.

British To Fire Test Underground in Nevada

LONDON (AP) — The United Kingdom atomic energy authority said today Britain will explode a nuclear device underground in Nevada during the next week or two. The blast will be Britain's first atomic test in four years.

of each fertilizer element you should add to produce a heavy, yield of any crop.

Many crops in the county are forced into "overeating" certain elements but are on a starvation diet for other nutrients needed to furnish them health and steady growth.

A major soil fertility program in the county is an unbalanced supply of plant nutrients. Eating only one food source each day is unhealthy for people—similarly, no one morsel of a certain fertilizer element can keep plants well-fed.

ALL FARMERS should ask themselves two questions: (1) Are you sure you know the fertility condition of the soils on your farm? (2) Do you know what kind and amount of fertilizer to use on

Underwater Firing By Soviets Doubtful

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union published today for the first time a picture of one of its rocket-carrying submarines.

The description indicated that it cannot fire from underwater like U. S. Polaris submarines. The picture, appearing in the Soviet military newspaper Krasnaya Zvezda (Red Star), shows two rockets on what appears to be the stern of the submarine.

During the past year, top Soviet leaders have repeatedly claimed that rocket-carrying submarines are the backbone of the Red fleet. But they have never disclosed whether the rockets can be fired from an underwater position.

As geologists reconstruct the Gulf of Mexico's history, the briny waters began evaporating nearly 200 million years ago, leaving vast deposits of salt. Researcher Finds Malarkey In Some Legends of Ireland

CINCINNATI (AP) — Dr. Arnold Schrier, a scholarly researcher, had a message to shock all true sons of Erin.

He said he found those warm nostalgic songs of Ireland have been largely the product of lively Irish-American imagination, instead of based on fact.

He said it seems Irish eyes don't really smile so often, nor is Irish laughter so lifting as merited in song. He said, in fact, the Irish in Ireland are still somewhat dismayed about such events as St. Patrick's Day as it occurs in America.

"They feel Americans are really out of touch," he said Thursday night. "St. Patrick's Day in Ireland is a much more sober and religious event. Dublin on St. Patrick's Day is really a tomb. 'The pubs are all closed.'"

Dr. Schrier, University of Cincinnati historian, had the courage to present his findings to the Friendly Sons of St. Patrick in Cincinnati, a group already planning for March 17.

He said the Irish-Americans, more than any other national group that came to this country, retained a romantic memory of the old country out of proportion to the facts.

Dr. Schrier spoke chiefly of his research work in Ireland in 1955-1956 to study effects of emigration on Ireland in the last 50 years of the 19th century.

He said about four million Irish left their homeland in that period and most came to America. But Irish emigrants since 1900 have

Army Reports Strategic Unit Enlargement

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Army has announced enlargement of its Strategic Corps and creation within it of two quick-strike forces, one mainly airborne and the other emphasizing armored might.

Five divisions are being added to the three already assigned. The reorganization does not involve any over-all Army manpower increase. But it does mean that about 75,000 more soldiers have been put into the "ready alert" force.

Actually it becomes a two-corps force. The additional corps will be made up, for the present, of two National Guard and three regular Army divisions.

The Army said the new organization will permit greater flexibility in dealing with multiple situations in widely separated areas.

It provides, the announcement said, for two mobile, hard-hitting corps, one essentially airborne and the other stronger in armor. The 49th Armored and 32nd Infantry divisions, National Guard outfits mobilized last fall, later will be replaced by the regular Army 1st Armored and 5th Infantry when the latter divisions reach a state of readiness next summer. The two Guard divisions presumably will be released from active duty at that time.

Police said they were told the two and another brother, Harold, 22, came here to visit the cousin, Bob Allen. They said there was room for only one in Bob Allen's apartment and the brothers flipped a coin to see who would stay in the apartment.

Harold won and said his brothers went out to their car about 1 a.m. to sleep.

settled elsewhere, chiefly in Britain or Canada.

U.S. Caribbean Chiefs Ridicule Cuban Claims

BALBOA, Canal Zone (AP)—The U. S. Caribbean Command headquarters ridiculed Cuban charges that the United States is training invasion forces at jungle camps in the Canal Zone.

Havana radio charged Thursday that the United States was also preparing troops for a new invasion of Cuba at camps in Los Santos Province of Panama on the Pacific coast.

Lt. Gen. Andrew P. Omera, head of the Caribbean Command, said: "If anything like that is going on it has been carefully concealed from me. I know nothing of such an operation. I don't believe a word of it."

Other military sources claimed the Cuban charges were a propaganda move linked to current U. S. maneuvers by a battle group of the 82nd Airborne Division at Rio Hato in central Panama. The troops also are using facilities of a jungle warfare training center operated by the Caribbean Command in the Canal Zone.

The U. S. Navy has maintained a radio station at Punta Mala in Los Santos Province for years.

Kiwanis Will Hear Conservancy Man

Dick Midden, secretary-treasurer of the Scioto Conservancy District, will be guest speaker at Monday night's regular Kiwanis Club meeting at the Mecca Restaurant.

Midden's topic will be "A New Valley." He will explain the Conservancy District and its application to Pickaway County.

Midden's appearance here has been arranged by John H. Dunlap Jr., a member of the Scioto Conservancy District Board of Directors.

"They feel Americans are really out of touch," he said Thursday night. "St. Patrick's Day in Ireland is a much more sober and religious event. Dublin on St. Patrick's Day is really a tomb. 'The pubs are all closed.'"

Dr. Schrier, University of Cincinnati historian, had the courage to present his findings to the Friendly Sons of St. Patrick in Cincinnati, a group already planning for March 17.

He said the Irish-Americans, more than any other national group that came to this country, retained a romantic memory of the old country out of proportion to the facts.

Dr. Schrier spoke chiefly of his research work in Ireland in 1955-1956 to study effects of emigration on Ireland in the last 50 years of the 19th century.

He said about four million Irish left their homeland in that period and most came to America. But Irish emigrants since 1900 have

Army Reports Strategic Unit Enlargement

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Army has announced enlargement of its Strategic Corps and creation within it of two quick-strike forces, one mainly airborne and the other emphasizing armored might.

Five divisions are being added to the three already assigned.

The reorganization does not involve any over-all Army manpower increase. But it does mean that about 75,000 more soldiers have been put into the "ready alert" force.

Actually it becomes a two-corps force. The additional corps will be made up, for the present, of two National Guard and three regular Army divisions. The Army said the new organization will permit greater flexibility in dealing with multiple situations in widely separated areas.

It provides, the announcement said, for two mobile, hard-hitting corps, one essentially airborne and the other stronger in armor. The 49th Armored and 32nd Infantry divisions, National Guard outfits mobilized last fall, later will be replaced by the regular Army 1st Armored and 5th Infantry when the latter divisions reach a state of readiness next summer. The two Guard divisions presumably will be released from active duty at that time.

Police said they were told the two and another brother, Harold, 22, came here to visit the cousin, Bob Allen. They said there was room for only one in Bob Allen's apartment and the brothers flipped a coin to see who would stay in the apartment.

Harold won and said his brothers went out to their car about 1 a.m. to sleep.

settled elsewhere, chiefly in Britain or Canada.

As for those tender Irish ballads, Dr. Schrier said he found on of the best known — "I'll Take You Home Again Kathleen" — was composed by a German in Kentucky to his 19th century sweetheart.

U.S. Caribbean Chiefs Ridicule Cuban Claims

BALBOA, Canal Zone (AP) — The U.S. Caribbean Command headquarters ridiculed Cuban charges that the United States is training invasion forces at jungle camps in the Canal Zone.

Havana radio charged Thursday that the United States was also preparing troops for a new invasion of Cuba at camps in Los Santos Province of Panama on the Pacific coast.

Lt. Gen. Andrew P. Omer, head of the Caribbean Command, said: "If anything like that is going on it has been carefully concealed from me. I know nothing of such an operation. I don't believe a word of it."

Other military sources claimed the Cuban charges were a propaganda move linked to current U.S. maneuvers by a battle group of the 82nd Airborne Division at Rio Hato in central Panama. The troops also are using facilities of a jungle warfare training center operated by the Caribbean Command in the Canal Zone.

The U.S. Navy has maintained a radio station at Punta Mala in Los Santos Province for years.

Kiwanis Will Hear Conservancy Man

Dick Midden, secretary-treasurer of the Scioto Conservancy District, will be guest speaker at Monday night's regular Kiwanis Club meeting at the Mecca Restaurant.

Midden's topic will be "A New Valley." He will explain the conservancy district and its application to Pickaway County.

Midden's appearance here has been arranged by John H. Dunlap Jr., a member of the Scioto Conservancy District Board of Directors.

Retail Food Price Climb Is Predicted

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department predicts retail food prices will average slightly higher in the first quarter of this year than last year despite the availability of ample supplies.

A food situation report said the rise in prices will be due mainly to increases in chickens, fresh fruits and vegetables. Food prices turned moderately downward through most of the second half of 1961, but in December they turned upward.

The report also predicted consumption of food per capita this year will be about the same as last.

The outlook for important classes of food:

Meats—Per capita supplies this year to average a little below last year, but little price change.

Turkeys & Broilers—Moderately lower supplies, with some increase in prices.

Eggs—Supplies more plentiful during the first half of this year than last, but expected to be about the same as last during the latter part of the year. Somewhat lower prices.

Dairy Products—Supplies more than ample, but further decline in consumption of fluid milk and butter expected. Little price change.

Food Fats & Oils—Supplies continuing large with little price change.

Fruits—Prospective supplies of fresh fruit for the first half of 1962 a little larger than a year earlier. No appreciable price change.

Vegetables—Supplies of fresh vegetables materially smaller this winter than last because of freeze damage in southern producing areas. Higher prices.

Cereal Food Products—Supplies will continue large, with some rise in price of wheat products because of increase in price support for this grain.

Sugar—Supplies to equal those of last year with possibility of small increase in prices.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Farmers built a record 129 million bushels of addition grain storage facilities on their farms under a government loan program last year.

This compared with 60.6 million bushels of capacity built in 1960.

The agriculture department makes loans up to 95 per cent of the cost of such facilities. The loans, which totaled $35,068,000 to 23,728 borrowers, are payable over a 5-year period.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Chairman Clarence McCormick of the National Advisory Committee for the Rural Areas Development Program says a serious shortage of potential leaders has developed in many distressed rural areas of the country.

This fact reflects, he says, heavy migration of the able people from such areas in search of jobs elsewhere.

McCormick's committee held a closed meeting here this week to review work of the program, designed to help such areas develop new job opportunities and to help train unemployed farm people for other skills.

Glenn Reports 'No Ill Effects'

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Astronaut John H. Glenn Jr. reported Friday he suffered no ill effects from prolonged weightlessness during his space journey on Tuesday. In fact, "It was very pleasant," he said.

"I had no trouble at all reaching switches or controlling the capsule in zero gravity (weightlessness)," the astronaut told a jammed news conference after a triumphant return to Cape Canaveral.

Enthusiastically discussing his historic flight, Glenn said he adapted quite early to the weightless sensation—which he was in for most of his 4 hour, 56 minute journey.

As an example, he said, about 30 or 45 minutes after launching he was taking pictures with a hand camera and wanted to do some switch work.

"I simply put the camera out and let it float in mid-air, (inside the capsule)," the astronaut said. "I did the switch work and then went back to the camera."

Still looking fit after a morning of strenuous ceremonies — including a parade cheered by 100, 000 persons and presentation of a medal by President Kennedy — Glenn stepped to a platform to hold a news conference.

The conference took place before several hundred newsmen in a circus tent set up at the Cape Canaveral press site, where reporters covered the flight Tuesday.

The only persons beside Glenn on the platform were James E. Webb, administrator of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, and Robert R. Gilruth, Project Mercury director.

At the outset, Gilruth said "this is a tremendous occasion for me."

He said a great many other people working on planning and engineering phases really did the job; then he referred to Glenn as the anchor man on the team who really pulled the job off.

Glenn told the gathering he would review major phases of his voyage. He said, first off, it was quite a day.

"I don't know what you say about a day when you see so many beautiful sunsets," he said.

All told, he said, he witnessed four sunsets. Three he saw in his three orbits around the earth and one from the destroyer which picked him up out of the Atlantic Ocean.

What effect did all of the delays have on his emotions and attitudes?

He said there was no real effect, he thought well and kept working.

On the day of the shot, Tuesday, "as the weather started to clear, I felt we were in a real 'go' condition," he said.

Th booster phase of the flight went very well, he continued, and velocity was within a few feet per second of what Project Mercury experts had aimed for. It was a good insertion into orbit.

When astronaut Alan B. Shepard told Glenn over the communications radio that "you have a 7 orbit capability," it was a "very welcome sound," Glenn said.

He said he experienced no nausea or disorientation whatsoever during his sky trip. He got used to the sensation of weightlessness quickly.

He said that as far as he knew he lost track of only one thing — a can of film which he batted accidentally and it went sailing behind the instrument panel.

As for eating aloft, Glenn said he had one tube of food and found that "this presented no problem of swallowing."

Eating presents no problem as long as the food is solid and can be put into the mouth.

Describing the sensation of speed at orbital altitude, he said it is about like that in a jet plane with clouds passing below.

Sunsets were most impressive, he continued, with the colors streaming away out and the horizon staying light for four or five minutes after the sun went down.

Then Glenn discussed sunrise and the mystery of what he had called luminous yellowish green lights, glowing as intensely as fireflies on a dark night.

His initial reaction was that his capsule had gone into a star field. He examined them intensely and noticed that there were thousands of them, seemingly 6 to 10 inches apart.

He could see them on each side of the capsule and in back. When he turned the capsule about to look in the direction from which they were coming, most of them disappeared.

He estimated he was moving 3 to 5 miles per hour with relation to this field of curious lights and said they were evenly distributed.

He said that one of the first things he thought they might be was a cloud of needles which the Air Force sent up last year but which disappeared. But they didn't look to be needles.

A second guess, he said, was it might be water vapor from his jets turning into small snowflakes. But when he worked the jets this didn't cause any such particles of light.

He observed them at the first light of sunrise. Occasionally one would drift up to the window in the shadow of the sun and then they looked like small snowflakes, from pinhead size to three-eighths of an inch in diameter.

He said he had no theory himself to explain them but that he saw them on all three orbits.

Critic of RFK Is Advised to Quit Worrying

WASHINGTON (AP) — A congressional critic of Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy's current trip abroad has been told in effect by Secretary of State Dean Rusk to quit worrying.

Rep. John V. Lindsay, R-N.Y., has complained about what he called "this kind of Madison Avenue approach" to foreign policy. He recently asked Rusk to explain the purpose of the Kennedy trip.

"I can assure you that you need have no concern about the visit abroad now being taken by the attorney general," Rusk wrote Lindsay.

Rusk added that Kennedy undertook this visit at his personal request and urging after receiving insistent invitations from high legal authorities of certain other governments "which, from my point of view, I was most anxious for him to be able to accept."

Rusk said it has been a great assistance to be able to request Cabinet members to undertake missions abroad and "the return in good will from such visits is very high."

Rusk said that Kennedy was traveling as a private citizen and is not on an official mission.

The trip is financed by the State Department.

Dear Abby... By Abigail VanBuren

Be Twice as Hasty Now!

DEAR ABBY: You are the only one I can turn to for help with this problem, so please don't let me down.

My boy friend (I'll call him Pete) and I went to my parents and asked for their permission to marry. They said absolutely not because Pete had nothing saved and only a summer job. We couldn't wait, so we drove over the state line and got a Justice of the Peace to marry us. We have been married nine weeks, and now I realize I made a bad mistake. Pete is mean to me. He runs around and says it's none of my business what he does. He is not the boy I thought he was. Please, please, help me out of this mess before I do something to myself. Pete is 20 and I am 17.

DESPERATE
DEAR DESPERATE: Tell your parents the whole story immediately. They are the only ones who can help you.

DEAR ABBY: Your letter from the girl who was ridiculed and called a "religious fanatic" because she refused to take showers naked in gym with other girls, has my sympathy. I am glad you stood up for me 17 years ago when I had the same problem. When I was 15, I was much more matured than most of my classmates. I was terribly self-conscious about it and refused to get into the showers naked unless the gym teacher got in, too. She wouldn't do it, so I wouldn't. I flunked gym. I could not graduate because I had no gym credit. But if I had it to do over again, I wouldn't do any different.

MODEST

DEAR ABBY: I am 17 and the boy I like is 19. When my mother met him, she took a dislike to him right away because she said he didn't "look like" my religion. I don't look like my religion, and neither does my brother, but that doesn't seem to make any impression on my mother. My boy friend told me he WAS of my religion and I believe him. I don't want to insult him by asking him to prove it. Please tell me how to get my mother to believe me, and let me go out with him.

NOT BELIEVED
DEAR NOT: If he is telling the truth, he should have no objections to telling his clergyman's name. That would be easy to check and would not be an insult.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "STRETCH PANTS": I think you are stretching things too far. If your husband objects, wear a skirt.

Still worrying about that same old problem? Write to Abby for a personal reply. Enclose a stamped self-addressed envelope. Box 3363, Beverly Hills, Calif.

Days of Sail Still Existing For Viking Tradition Denmark

Looking like sparrows on the branches of a leafless tree are these Danish trainees. A robust physique is necessary on cruises—particularly when the loads are sent aloft.

By STEVE LIBBY
Central Press Association
Correspondent

Seafaring traditions go back to Viking times in Denmark, where for centuries it has been the custom to train future ships' officers on sailing ships. Today a three-masted sailing ship with a clear-cut clipper stem still plies the oceans of the world, its crew made up of boys who have selected the sea for a career.

For 28 years the Denmark has cruised the Atlantic, the Indian Ocean and the Mediterranean covering nearly half-a-million miles while training 2,230 Danish cadets.

Both in the training of its seamen and in shipbuilding, the Danes have always been pioneers.

In 1882 shipowner C. F. Stage built the Georg Stage, capable of training 80 cadets a year. For two generations young men learned to become efficient seamen on this beautiful ship which today — as the Joseph Conrad — is a museum piece at Mystic Seaport, near New London, Conn.

Next came the Viking in 1907 and later the Kobenhavn, a five-masted bark, was put into service.

The Denmark was launched as a training ship in a Danish shipyard Nov. 19, 1932. She was — and is — a three-masted, full-rigged ship with double topsails, single topgallant sail and royals, equipped with auxiliary engines for use in confined waters and when entering and leaving port.

Cruise duration is six months and seamanship and theory in the ship's classrooms share the busy schedules. There are 22 periods in seamanship, 22 in navigation, 22 in rules of the sea, 22 in Danish, 22 in arithmetic, 10 in science, 35 in Morse Code and telegraphy and six each in hygiene and engineering.

The ship's captain, Knud L. Hansen, lectures on such subjects as winds and currents, ship types and construction, meteorology and other pertinent elements. Learning by doing allows every cadet to secure practical experience by a tour of duty at the wheel, at navigation and even climbing the masts to unfurl sails. It's a tough but invigorating life which matures the youngster while training him for his vocation.

The Denmark is no stranger to American shores. When the Germans occupied Denmark on April 9, 1940 she lay in Jacksonville Fla., as a ship without a country. She was adopted by the citizens who fed and clothed her crew-but one by one, the young Danes signed aboard Allied ships or joined the Canadian Army, Navy, or Air Force.

Later, the Denmark was used by the United States Coast Guard Academy at New London, Conn., as a training ship. By so doing, the Denmark followed in the wake of the former Georg Stage (now the Joseph Conrad), also used by the Coast Guard for training purposes.

By war's end the Denmark had trained 2,800 Americans, and she returned to Denmark, once again to fly the Danish colors.

The training ship resumed her old work.

So it is that the lovely ship, reminiscent of another and more romantic era, still sails the seas in her quest to offer Danish shipowners the opportunity of employing young ships' officers with sailing ship training.

NEW YORK (AP) — Television's schedule of specials during the next seven days promises something for just about everybody in the mass audience since they range from drama and comedy to biography and news analysis.

Sunday promises to be the red letter day of the week. The NBC Opera Company will do a new production of Montemezzi's "Love of Three Kings" (3-5 p.m.) CBS has twin treats in the late evening: "The Judy Garland Show" (9-10), followed by an adaptation of Maxwell Anderson's comedy, "Saturday's Children" (10-11). Conflicting with the drama, is an NBC "White Paper" on Red China, including film clips made there and interviews with returning travellers.

"The World of Sophia Lauren," filmed in France and Italy, is NBC's special Tuesday (7:30-8:30 p.m.) with another Bob Hope show following along later (9-10).

He said there was no real effect, he thought well and kept working.

On the day of the shot, Tuesday, "as the weather started to clear, I felt we were in a real 'go' condition," he said.

Th booster phase of the flight went very well, he continued, and velocity was within a few feet per second of what Project Mercury experts had aimed for. It was a good insertion into orbit.

When astronaut Alan B. Shepard told Glenn over the communications radio that "you have a 7 orbit capability," it was a "very welcome sound," Glenn said.

He said he experienced no nausea or disorientation whatsoever during his sky trip. He got used to the sensation of weightlessness quickly.

He said that as far as he knew he lost track of only one thing—a can of film which he batted accidentally and it went sailing behind the instrument panel.

As for eating aloft, Glenn said he had one tube of food and found that "this presented no problem of swallowing."

Eating presents no problem as long as the food is solid and can be put into the mouth.

Describing the sensation of speed at orbital altitude, he said it is about like that in a jet plane with clouds passing below.

Sunsets were most impressive, he continued, with the colors streaming away out and the horizon staying light for four or five minutes after the sun went down.

Then Glenn discussed sunrise and the mystery of what he had called luminous yellowish green lights, glowing as intensely as fireflies on a dark night.

His initial reaction was that his capsule had gone into a star field. He examined them intensely and noticed that there were thousands of them, seemingly 6 to 10 inches apart.

He could see them on each side of the capsule and in back. When he turned the capsule about to look in the direction from which they were coming, most of them disappeared.

He estimated he was moving 3 to 5 miles per hour with relation to this field of curious lights and said they were evenly distributed.

He said that one of the first things he thought they might be was a cloud of needles which the Air Force sent up last year but which disappeared. But they didn't look to be needles.

A second guess, he said, was it might be water vapor from his jets turning into small snowflakes. But when he worked the jets this didn't cause any such particles of light.

He observed them at the first light of sunrise. Occasionally one would drift up to the window in the shadow of the sun and then they looked like small snowflakes, from pinhead size to three-eighths of an inch in diameter.

He said he had no theory himself to explain them but that he saw them on all three orbits.

ed aboard Allied ships or joined the Canadian Army, Navy, or Air Force.

Later, the Danmark was used by the United States Coast Guard Academy at New London, Conn., as a training ship. By so doing, the Danmark followed in the wake of the former Georg Stage (now the Joseph Conrad), also used by the Coast Guard for training purposes.

By war's end the Danmark had trained 2,800 Americans, and she returned to Denmark, once again, to fly the Danish colors.

The training ship resumed her old work.

So it is that the lovely ship, reminiscent of another and more romantic era, still sails the seas in her quest to offer Danish shipowners the opportunity of employing young ships' officers with sailing ship training.

NEW YORK (AP) — Television's schedule of specials during the next seven days promises something for just about everybody in the mass audience since they range from drama and comedy to biography and news analysis.

Sunday promises to be the red letter day of the week. The NBC Opera Company will do a new production of Montemezzi's "Love of Three Kings" (3-5 p.m.) CBS has twin treats in the late evening: "The Judy Garland Show" (9-10), followed by an adaptation of Maxwell Anderson's comedy, "Saturday's Children" (10-11).

Conflicting with the drama, is an NBC "White Paper" on Red China, including film clips made there and interviews with returning travelers.

"The World of Sophia Lauren," filmed in France and Italy, is NBC's special Tuesday (7:30-8:30 p.m.) with another Bob Hope show following along later (9-10).

Critic of RFK Is Advised to Quit Worrying

WASHINGTON (AP) — A congressional critic of Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy's current trip abroad has been told in effect by Secretary of State Dean Rusk to quit worrying.

Rep. John V. Lindsay, R-N.Y., has complained about what he called "this kind of Madison Avenue approach" to foreign policy. He recently asked Rusk to explain the purpose of the Kennedy trip.

"I can assure you that you need have no concern about the visit abroad now being taken by the attorney general," Rusk wrote Lindsay.

Rusk added that Kennedy undertook this visit at his personal request and urging after receiving insistent invitations from high legal authorities of certain other governments "which, from my point of view, I was most anxious for him to be able to accept."

Rusk said it has been a great assistance to be able to request Cabinet members to undertake missions abroad and "the return in good will from such visits is very high."

Rusk said that Kennedy was traveling as a private citizen and is not on an official mission.

The trip is financed by the State Department.

Dear Abby...

By Abigail VanBuren

Be Twice as Hasty Now!

DEAR ABBY: You are the only one I can turn to for help with this problem, so please don't let me down.

My boy friend (I'll call him Pete) and I went to my parents and asked for their permission to marry. They said absolutely not because Pete had nothing saved and only a summer job. We couldn't wait, so we drove over the state line and got a Justice of the Peace to marry us. We have been married nine weeks, and now I realize I made a bad mistake. Pete is mean to me. He runs around and says it's none of my business what he does. He is not the boy I thought he was. Please, please, help me out of this mess before I do something to myself. Pete is 20 and I am 17.

DESPERATE: Tell your parents the whole story immediately. They are the only ones who can help you.

DEAR ABBY: Your letter from the girl who was ridiculed and called a "religious fanatic" because she refused to take showers naked in gym with other girls, has my sympathy. I am glad you stood up for me 17 years ago when I had the same problem. When I was 15, I was much more mature than most of my classmates. I was terribly self-conscious about it and refused to get into the showers naked unless the gym teacher got in, too. She wouldn't do it, so I wouldn't. I flunked gym. I could not graduate because I had no gym credit. But if I had it to do over again, I wouldn't do any different.

MODEST

DEAR ABBY: I am 17 and the boy I like is 19. When my mother

met him, she took a dislike to him right away because she said he didn't "look like" my religion. I don't look like my religion, and neither does my brother, but that doesn't seem to make any impression on my mother. My boy friend told me he WAS of my religion and I believe him. I don't want to insult him by asking him to prove it. Please tell me how to get my mother to believe me, and let me go out with him.

NOT BELIEVED
DEAR NOT: If he is telling the truth, he should have no objections to telling his clergyman's name. That would be easy to check and would not be an insult.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "STRETCH PANTS": I think you are stretching things too far. If your husband objects, wear a skirt.

Still worrying about that same old problem? Write to Abby for a personal reply. Enclose a stamped self-addressed envelope. Box 3365, Beverly Hills, Calif.

Help from Far Places

Leading scientists recently held a conference at Green Bank, W. Va., in which they rated communication with other worlds in the universe as a distinct possibility.

This has little to do with interplanetary space travel. In fact, some of the scientists contend space travel is not practical for this or any other civilization. A physicist said interstellar rockets "belong right where they are — on cereal boxes."

The value these scientists attached to trying to get into communication with other worlds is the chance of an exchange of experiences. The current crisis on earth might have been survived successfully by other worlds.

Scientists would like to learn whether self-destruction is a characteristic of civilizations throughout the universe or whether some of them may have found the way to meet such crises.

That there are other civilizations in the universe is, of course, only a plausible estimate. Man has no reason to think there are not; no proof that there are. Exchanging intelligible signals with them would be the next problem.

Experience Is Best Teacher

We once knew a chap whose ambition in life was to acquire experiences worth owning. His contention was that they constituted the only real wealth in this world.

An experience that is really worth having and owning, he would point out, does not have to be insured. You don't have to keep it in a safety deposit box. It can not be sold by the sheriff to pay your debts. You don't need a lawyer's advice with respect to it. It is never subject to any tax and your executor will never have to account for it. And your heirs will relish the recollection of your tale of it.

As a matter of fact, he used to say, such an experience was about the only thing a man could acquire that some one else did not have some kind of stake in. A man can relive it in his mind all his life. And so, he used to urge, don't stint yourself when you go traveling or take a holiday.

What you carry home in your mind is an ample return for the money you have laid out, and no one can ever take that away from you.

SUN INSPECTOR—It's OSO, for Orbiting Solar Observatory, a 440-pound gadget with which NASA expects to take science's first direct look at the sun. Below is shown a Mount Wilson-Palomar Observatory photo of what OSO will be looking for, one of those gigantic solar disturbances called sunspots erupting off the sun's surface. That little white dot represents Earth, to scale. This is a program expected to run 11 years, and furnish information on how to keep outer space travelers from winding up fried by solar radiations like this. Building and launching this first OSO runs a tidy $6 million. It carries a series of 13 experiments.

Of selling nuts and screws or some such objects, so that he will learn what it really takes. After all, the customer does not have to buy the ABC brand if he can get a German brand for less money or a Japanese brand for still less. Even Canadian goods are sold in the American market to the advantage of the Canadians.

Apart from price, salesmanship is a tremendous factor in any business and salesmanship costs money. I often receive letters from businessmen denying that theater tickets in New York, steaks at night clubs and similar expenditures are necessary but it depends upon whether one is selling shoes or steel. It is not that the customer wants to be bribed but he likes to feel important enough to deserve the "Diamond Jim Brady" treatment and if the American salesman cannot give it to him, a British salesman can right here in New York.

Goods being goods, the buyer gives the good fellow a break, it is not bothering him at all that the bill is paid by Uncle Sam or John Bull or whoever has money for such purposes. True, yachts are expensive and I do not particularly like the ocean, but many a big deal is consummated while the characters are deep-sea fishing, as they call it.

If that is the way business is done, who can really object? Our task is to sell goods and to provide work for more than 60,000,000 of our citizens and if anybody believes that that can be achieved with no effort, he does not know how to sell anything and make a profit at it.

Before the depression of 1929, nobody had any doubts as to how to sell. Charley Schwab could go into any market and unload American steel and the smoke poured out of the stacks in Pittsburgh and Bethlehem. Instead he moved about the world and American steel competed with any of the them and Charley spent money like a wild man, making the customer feel good and swear by Charley's product.

3 Steubenville Youths Held For Extortion

YOUNGSTOWN, Ohio (AP) — Three Steubenville youths are in Mahoning County Jail on charges of threatening bodily harm to a Youngstown man unless he paid them $4,000.

They were arrested by FBI agents at Toronto when they picked up a package supposedly containing the money, which had been dropped by a federal agent substituting for the intended victim.

Edward E. Hargett, agent in charge of the Cleveland FBI office, identified the trio as Charles Thomas Oxley, 17, John Hamilton Brewer, 17, and John Anthony Reducha, 20. He said they were charged under the federal extortion statute.

Oxley and Brewer are seniors at Steubenville High School. Reducha is employed in Toronto. Hargett said the trio placed a bomb near what they thought was a coffee house operated by Gus Leamis, 62, here about 1 a.m. Feb. 11. The explosive actually was near the Cleveland Hotel located across an alley from the coffee house, he added.

The hotel was damaged slightly in the blast, but the coffee house escaped damage.

Following the explosion, the youths went to Pittsburgh, where they wrote a letter on hotel stationery to Leamis demanding that he pay $4,000 or "the next time your place will be leveled," Hargett said. The letter told Leamis to take the money to a tavern at Stratton, north of Steubenville.

Leamis contacted police, who turned the case over to the FBI.

STATISTICS ABOUT Little old New York, assembled by Sam Himmell: Gas was introduced in 1825, and cabs were first launched in 1840, with three in service in front of the old Astor House. In July, 1842, New York celebrated the opening of Croton Aqueduct, providing the city with an adequate water supply for the first time. In 1845 the New York Knickerbockers, the first regular baseball club, was organized. The first practicable passenger elevator was installed by the Otis Elevator Company in a store on Broadway in 1857; and the Tower Building, 13 stories high at 50 Broadway, was the first steel-structure building in New York, erected in 1888. In May, 1883, the Brooklyn Bridge was finished by John A. Roebling & Sons. In 1889-90, the first "El" was constructed in New York City. It ran on Greenwich Street from Battery Place to 30th Street. In June, 1885, the French vessel s/s Isere arrived at Bedloe's Island with 22 tons in 210 wooden cases of the Statue of Liberty. A great celebration greeted her arrival.

Republic of Maldives Is Key Link for British Air Routes

By STEVE LIBBY

The republic of the Maldives seems an improbable place for an airfield — yet facilities have been re-established to safeguard the British Commonwealth's air route to Malaya, Australia, New Zealand and the Far East in this remote and little-known corner of the world.

The airfield is on Gan, an island in Addu Atoll at the extreme south of the Maldivian Islands.

Lying in the Indian Ocean 400 miles southwest of Ceylon, the republic consists of 2,000 low-lying coral islands, of which some 220 are inhabited. They are grouped in a dozen clearly-defined atolls, with a population of Sinhalese extraction of about 90,000, whose principal means of support has long been fishing.

During World War II, Britain established fleet facilities at Addu Atoll which provided shelter, fuel and stores — and an airfield on Gan.

This island a mile and three-quarters long and half that width, had overgrown with tropical vegetation until recently, when it was re-developed and modernized as a staging and refueling post. Aerials for wireless communication were established on a nearby island.

The facilities are the result of talks between the government of the United Kingdom and the government of the Maldives nearly 10 years ago.

These events solved a problem for the British: some of the most important communications in the far-flung British Empire depended on the right — then lost — to fly over Egyptian and Syrian territory also the old and well-established air routes in which stopping points include Aden and Bahrain; then across to Pakistan and India, or via Ceylon to Singapore, Hong Kong, Australia and New Zealand.

In India, the British had the right to utilize the airfield at Calcutta, but this was subjected to certain restrictions. There were problems in Ceylon, too. Thus the importance of the Maldivian Islands became clear.

Aircraft flying from Great Britain must be able to land somewhere in the Indian Ocean for refueling and the Gan base is making this possible not only for military aircraft, but for such British overseas airlines as B.O.A.C. and Qantas.

The new air route can be via Libya, East Africa, the Maldives and Singapore.

The islands have long enjoyed the protection of the United Kingdom, in an act formally recorded in an exchange of letters between the sultan of the Maldives and the governor of Ceylon in 1887.

When, in 1948, Ceylon became a sovereign state within the Commonwealth, a new agreement was signed between the sultan and the government.

This provided that the islands should remain under the protection of the crown, that their external affairs should be conducted in accordance with the advice of the United Kingdom government, which would refrain from any interference in the islands' internal affairs.

Inside You and Yours

By BURTON H. FERN, M.D.

He was an internationally famous medical specialist — but now he was a wanted criminal!

The crime? Treating patients in a neighboring state!

He had taught local doctors, but until he passed local State Board examinations, he was considered unqualified.

Your doctor's license doesn't extend beyond state borders. Many states agree to recognize each other's, but often a doctor must pass different examinations for different states.

Organized to solve this problem, The National Board of Medical Examiners designed tests for tougher than any single state's. One set of examinations could serve countrywide.

States could still check the applicant's character and even test his knowledge of local health regulations — like the rules-of-the-road test when transferring your out-of-state driver's license.

Often, National Boards are only partly acceptable and some states ignore them completely.

Vacationland states may want to keep tourist-minded doctors from overcrowding the local scene. Everyone still wants the steady income from examination fees. One enterprising state simply doubled the usual $50 fee when applicants qualified through National Boards.

Each state jealously guarded its licensing privilege. So did the Virgin Islands — U. S. territory.

Medical Tribune recently told about a Massachusetts surgeon who tried to revive a Virgin Islander struck by lightning. When all else failed, the surgeon cut open the chest with a tiny penknife and massaged the heart for hours, but without success.

His reward — an announcement that he had broken the law and might be prosecuted as a criminal. He had no right to try and save a life without a Virgin Islands medical license.

No out-of-state doctor can legally treat emergency accident victims. Your doctor may have to refuse your emergency call if you live across the state line where he's not licensed.

While anyone can cross state borders, that little black bag makes all the difference!

Dr. Fern's mailbox is wide open for letters from readers. While he cannot undertake to answer individual letters, he will use readers' questions in his column whenever possible and when they are of general interest. Address your letters to Dr. Fern in care of this newspaper.

experiences. The current crisis on earth might have been survived successfully by other worlds.

Scientists would like to learn whether self-destruction is a characteristic of civilizations throughout the universe or whether some of them may have found the way to meet such crises.

That there are other civilizations in the universe is, of course, only a plausible estimate. Man has no reason to think there are not; no proof that there are. Exchanging intelligible signals with them would be the next problem.

recollection of your tale of it.

As a matter of fact, he used to say, such an experience was about the only thing a man could acquire that some one else did not have some kind of stake in. A man can relive it in his mind all his life. And so, he used to urge, don't stint yourself when you go traveling or take a holiday.

What you carry home in your mind is an ample return for the money you have laid out, and no one can ever take that away from you.

of selling nuts and screws or some such objects, so that he will learn what it really takes. After all, the customer does not have to buy the ABC brand if he can get a German brand for less money or a Japanese brand for still less. Even Canadian goods are sold in the American market to the advantage of the Canadians.

Apart from price, salesmanship is a tremendous factor in any business and salesmanship costs money. I often receive letters from businessmen denying that theater tickets in New York, steaks at night clubs and similar expenditures are necessary but it depends upon whether one is selling shoes or steel. It is not that the customer wants to be bribed but he likes to feel important enough to deserve the "Diamond Jim Brady" treatment and if the American salesman cannot give it to him, a British salesman can right here in New York.

Goods being goods, the buyer gives the good fellow a break, it not bothering him at all that the bill is paid by Uncle Sam or John Bull or whoever has money for such purposes. True, yachts are expensive and I do not particularly like the ocean, but many a big deal is consummated while the characters are deep-sea fishing, as they call it.

If that is the way business is done, who can really object? Our task is to sell goods and to provide work for more than 60,000,000 of our citizens and if anybody believes that that can be achieved with no effort, he does not know how to sell anything and make a profit at it.

Before the depression of 1929, nobody had any doubts as to how to sell. Charley Schwab could go into any market and unload American steel and the smoke poured out of the stacks in Pittsburgh and Bethlehem. Instead he moved about the world and American steel competed with any of them and Charley spent money like a wild man, making the customer feel good and swear by Charley's product.

Expense accounts are normal in business everywhere except in the minds of the Treasury officials who probably learned salesmanship at the Harvard Business School. If we try hard enough, we shall, in the next quarter of a century, turn our own market over to some other country. We have been very careless over the years about our products and salesmanship and the Yankee salesman, who could sell anything from the Brooklyn Bridge to a wooden nutmeg, today wonders why a Hongkong tailor can sell suits in New York — the textile market of America.

Something is wrong if we cannot hold our own in our own markets, particularly now when the theoreticians are complicating the problem by depriving a salesman of his expense account. Of course, businessmen will find a way to protect themselves from being impoverished. If nothing else is left to them, they will bootleg their expense accounts as they bootlegged whiskey when Mabel Walker Wilebrandt sought to legislate morality. There must be a way out and we are not going to go broke because a student of economic virtue prefers to give our markets to our competitors.

Let us return to realism. An expense account ought not to be a warrant to engage in petty larceny, but there ought to be enough accountability skill and wisdom to protect the Treasury from losses of revenue and not at the same time ruin business. Of course, the businessman who lives on his expense account is a thief but that is no reason to stand in the way of sales or to give Canadians an advantage over the United States.

We are becoming so good-natured that we shall be cutting our own throats, like those who insist on smoking Cuban cigars no matter how much it helps Fidel Castro. So, we are financing the sale of steel pipe to Soviet Russia to destroy our policy in Central Europe.

What is most needed is economic coordination — a thinking out of our economics and political problems so that they are correlated and can be stated in simple terms, so that the citizen may know how he can best achieve a successful trade.

3 Steubenville Youths Held For Extortion

YOUNGSTOWN, Ohio (AP) — Three Steubenville youths are in Mahoning County Jail on charges of threatening bodily harm to a Youngstown man unless he paid them $4,000.

They were arrested by FBI agents at Toronto when they picked up a package supposedly containing the money, which had been dropped by a federal agent substituting for the intended victim.

Edward E. Hargett, agent in charge of the Cleveland FBI office, identified the trio as Charles Thomas Oxley, 17, John Hamilton Brewer, 17, and John Anthony Reducha, 20. He said they were charged under the federal extortion statute.

Oxley and Brewer are seniors at Steubenville High School. Reducha is employed in Toronto.

Hargett said the trio placed a bomb near what they thought was a coffee house operated by Gus Leamis, 62, here about 1 a.m. Feb. 11. The explosive actually was near the Cleveland Hotel located across an alley from the coffee house, he added.

The hotel was damaged slightly in the blast, but the coffee house escaped damage.

Following the explosion, the youths went to Pittsburgh, where they wrote a letter to hotel stationery to Leamis demanding that he pay $4,000 or "the next time your place will be leveled," Hargett said. The letter told Leamis to take the money to a tavern at Stratton, north of Steubenville.

Leamis contacted police, who turned the case over to the FBI.

STATISTICS ABOUT little old New York, assembled by Sam Himmell: Gas was introduced in 1825, and cabs were first launched in 1840, with three in service in front of the old Astor House. In July, 1842, New York celebrated the opening of Croton Aqueduct, providing the city with an adequate water supply for the first time. In 1845 the New York Knickerbockers, the first regular baseball club, was organized. The first practicable passenger elevator was installed by the Otis Elevator Company in a store on Broadway in 1857; and the Tower Building, 13 stories high at 50 Broadway, was the first steel-structure building in New York, erected in 1888. In May, 1883, the Brooklyn Bridge was finished by John A. Roebling & Sons. In 1869-70, the first "EI" was constructed in New York City. It ran on Greenwich Street from Battery Place to 30th Street. In June, 1885, the French vessel s/s Isere arrived at Bedloe's Island with 22 tons in 210 wooden cases of the Statue of Liberty. A great celebration greeted her arrival.

Republic of Maldives Is Key Link for British Air Routes

By STEVE LIBBY

The republic of the Maldives seems an improbable place for an airfield — yet facilities have been re-established to safeguard the British Commonwealth's air route to Malaysia, Australia, New Zealand and the Far East in this remote and little-known corner of the world.

The airfield is on Gan, an island in Addu Atoll at the extreme south of the Maldives Islands.

Lying in the Indian Ocean 400 miles southwest of Ceylon, the republic consists of 2,000 low-lying coral islands, of which some 220 are inhabited. They are grouped in a dozen clearly-defined atolls, with a population of Sinhalese extraction of about 90,000, whose principal means of support has long been fishing.

During World War II, Britain established fleet facilities at Addu Atoll which provided shelter, fuel and stores — and an airfield on Gan.

This island a mile and three-quarters long and half that width, had overgrown with tropical vegetation until recently, when it was re-developed and modernized as a staging and refueling post. Aerials for wireless communication were established on a nearby island.

The air facilities are the result of talks between the government of the United Kingdom and the government of the Maldives nearly 10 years ago.

These events solved a problem for the British: some of the most important communications in the far-flung British Empire depended on the right — then lost — to fly over Egyptian and Syrian territory also the old and well-established air routes in which stopping points include Aden and Bahrain; then across to Pakistan and India, or via Ceylon to Singapore, Hong Kong, Australia and New Zealand.

In India, the British had the right to utilize the airfield at Calcutta, but this was subjected to certain restrictions. There were problems in Ceylon, too. Thus the importance of the Maldives Islands became clear.

Aircraft flying from Great Britain must be able to land somewhere in the Indian Ocean for refueling and the Gan base is making this possible not only for military aircraft, but for such British overseas airlines as B.O.A.C. and Qantas.

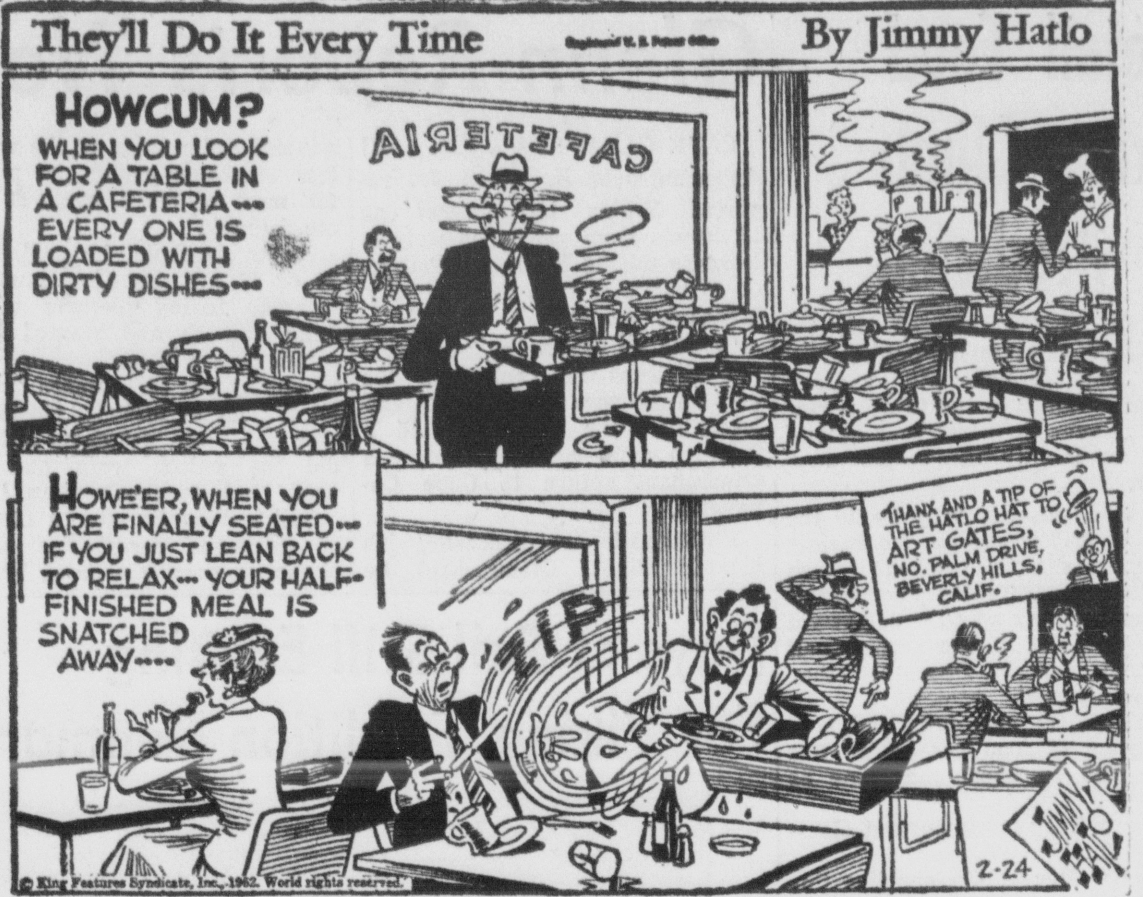

The new air route can be via Libya East Africa, the Maldives and Singapore.

The islands have long enjoyed the protection of the United Kingdom, in an act formally recorded in an exchange of letters between the sultan of the Maldives and the governor of Ceylon in 1887.

When, in 1948, Ceylon became a sovereign state within the commonwealth, a new agreement was signed between the sultan and the government.

This provided that the islands should remain under the protection of the crown, that their external affairs should be conducted in accordance with the advice of the United Kingdom government, which would refrain from any interference in the islands' internal affairs.

Inside You and Yours

By BURTON H. FERN, M.D.

He was an internationally famous medical specialist — but now he was a wanted criminal!

The crime? Treating patients in a neighboring state!

He had taught local doctors, but until he passed local State Board examinations, he was considered unqualified.

Your doctor's license doesn't extend beyond state borders. Many states agree to recognize each other's, but often a doctor must pass different examinations for different states.

Organized to solve this problem, The National Board of Medical Examiners designed tests for tougher than any single state's. One set of examinations could serve countrywide.

States could still check the applicant's character and even test his knowledge of local health regulations — like the rules of the road test when transferring your out-of-state driver's license.

Often, National Boards are only partly acceptable and some states ignore them completely.

Vacationland states may want to keep tourist-minded doctors from overcrowding the local scene. Everyone still wants the steady income from examination fees. One enterprising state simply doubled the usual $50 fee when applicants qualified through National Boards.

Each state jealously guarded its licensing privilege. So did the Virgin Islands — U. S. territory.

Medical Tribune recently told about a Massachusetts surgeon who tried to revive a Virgin Islander struck by lightning. When all else failed, the surgeon cut open the chest with a tiny penknife and massaged the heart for hours, but without success.

His reward — an announcement that he had broken the law and might be prosecuted as a criminal. He had no right to try and save a life without a Virgin Islands medical license.

No out-of-state doctor can legally treat emergency accident victims. Your doctor may have to refuse your emergency call if you live across the state line where he's not licensed.

While anyone can cross state borders, that little black bag makes all the difference!

Dr. Fern's mailbox is wide open for letters from readers. While he cannot undertake to answer individual letters, he will use readers' questions in his column whenever possible and when they are of general interest. Address your letters to Dr. Fern in care of this newspaper.

eration is given to the fact that he played for two years with Bob Hoover. Bob was an outstanding scorer and rebounder in his playing days at Ashville.

Rathburn has not limited his sports achievements to basketball. He has been a member of the Ashville baseball team for three years as a pitcher and an infielder.

Last year he pitched eight games, winning seven and losing one. His only loss came at the hands of Liberty Union, the eventual state champs.

He has consistently batted over .300 and can play shortstop or first base equally well.

Last summer he pitched American Legion baseball and turned in an impressive job.

Tom belongs to the Methodist Church in Ashville and is active in the Methodist youth fellowship.

HE IS president of the Varsity A, an honor athletic club at Ashville school. He is also treasurer of the senior class.

Despite his outside activities in sports, the Church and membership in school organizations he has still maintained a creditable B minus average while pursuing college preparatory courses offered at Ashville.

Tom is definitely going to college but as yet has not made up his mind where he will attend. He is interested in a degree in business, specializing in accounting.

Coach Russ Gregg said Rathburn has been a fine representative for the school with his conduct both on and off the cage floor. The village of Ashville may well be proud of Tom Rathburn and the reputation he has earned for the village and the school. He is truly representative of all the qualities needed to win the Bob Bowsher Trophy.

Bob Bowsher, in whose honor the trophy is awarded, was killed in the European theatre of action during World War II.

Although Bowsher was not an outstanding individual athlete he was an exceptionally fine team competitor. He was described by his coaches as being the type of player who makes a team click.

WHILE at Circleville he participated in football, basketball, track and boxing. He lettered in each sport.

After his graduation in 1940, he enrolled at Tusculum College in Tennessee where he played varsity football his freshman year.

The following year he enlisted in the army.

He was wounded in action on July 12, 1944, and died two days later.

CHS Senior Class To Present Plays

The Senior Class play production of Circleville High School will be a series of three one-act plays according to Robert Ransom, speech and dramatics teacher at CHS.

The triple bill will be presented at 8 p. m. March 15 and 16, Ransom said today.

First of the series will be "The Telltale Heart" by Edgar Allan Poe. Jim Spalding, senior class president, will play the lead using a script which he adapted from the original murder mystery.

Following this will be the light-hearted comedy, "The Ugly Duckling" by A. A. Milbrun, a story of romance in the days of knighthood. Student director, Dora Greene, has announced the cast as follows: Dave Troutman, Sherry Fisher, Jack Mader, Susan Cherrington, Keith Thomerson, Bette Fraser and John Adkins.

The final play will be "Sorry, Wrong Number", Carolyn Walters, student director, said the cast will be headed by Martha Samuel with an eleven-member supporting cast.

Tickets may be purchased from members of the senior class and can be reserved at the school beginning March 12.

Student Initiated Into DG Sorority

Katherine Measamer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. G. Measamer, Knollwood Village, has been initiated into Delta Gamma Sorority at Denison University, Granville.

Miss Measamer is a freshman at the university.

Open sandwiches are great for evening snacks. One delicious combination is made this way: arrange thin slices of roast beef on dark bread and center with a mound of chopped jellied consomme topped with horseradish. Men like this! Use fresh grated horseradish if you can; otherwise substitute the drained bottled variety.

Mrs. Hobbie's workers are Mrs. Marilyn Snyder, Mrs. Helen Jacobs, Mrs. Daryl Thompson, Mrs. Mary Jacobs, Mrs. Robert Tacy, Mrs. Betty Gentzel, Miss Diane Crabtree, Mrs. Gerald Bowers and Mrs. Roy Farmer.

In Mrs. Lindsey's group are Mrs. Milton Griest, Mrs. Paul Roan, Mrs. Dwight Davis, Mrs. Richard Spires, Mrs. John Wright, Mrs. Merrill Allen, Mrs. Richard Crawford, Mrs. C. E. Linn, Mrs. Robert Ferguson, Mrs. Bernard Smith, Mrs. Roy Garrett and Mrs. Thomas Anderson.

Mrs. Justice has as helpers Mrs. Charles Smith, Miss Linda Rhymmer, Miss Diane Rhymmer, Mrs. Lester Brooks, Mrs. Billy Lockard, Miss Ann Glitt, Mrs. William Wolfe, Mrs. Willis Flowers, Mrs. Ralph Boyer, Mrs. Edgar Webb and Mrs. John Simison.

Volunteers in Mrs. Johnson's group are Mrs. George Skaggs, Mrs. Judd Gleixner, Mrs. Nancy Happenny, Mrs. Norman Ritter, Mrs. Theodore Culp, Mrs. Bill Ankrom, Mrs. Robert Miller, Mrs. Wilma Hughes, Mrs. Charles Smith, Mrs. Ralph Burns, Mrs. Ray Sapp and Mrs. Virgil Cress.

Mrs. Stome's volunteers are Mrs. Charles Thomas, Mrs. Paul T. Valentine, Miss Marilyn Hardesty, Mrs. Richard Jones and Mrs. Douglas Cotterman.

Mrs. Christy said envelopes will be left where persons are not at home. Donations then may be sent as directed on the envelopes.

Boy Scout Campaign Heads Report $8,642 Current Total

A total of $8,642 was reported when Boy Scout Camp Development Campaign heads met this week at the Farm Bureau Building in Washington, C. H.

This report covers Area C which includes the counties of Pickaway, Fayette and Highland. The Pickaway District reported a total of $6,141. The top team for the first report period was John Eshelman's with subscriptions totaling $1,000.

A plaque to be awarded each report meeting to the county chairman reporting the largest number of pledges was won by Pickaway County. The team winning the plaque the most times will maintain possession when the drive is over.

Money raised will be used to remodel Camp Lazarus in Delaware County, build two new camps on Greenhills Reservation in Hocking County, and establish minimum facilities on the five Council-owned weekend or short-term camp sites.

SCOUT officials have reported these facilities are badly needed for the Scouts in Central Ohio Council. Present facilities will accommodate only 25 per cent of the boys eligible and desiring to go camping, they said.

Report meetings will continue weekly in each area, at the same time and place for a total of four meetings.

FOR LOGAN ELM sharp shooting Chuck Spangler led the way sinking nine of 15 from the field and five of six at the foul lane for a total of 23. Dave Horn was six for eight and two for two at the charity stripe for a total of 14 as he turned in another excellent performance for Coach Keith Merrin. Danny Hicks connected on four of eight from the field and dropped through his only foul shot scoring nine.

As a team Ashville hit 28 of 54 attempts from the field and made 17 of 22 at the charity stripe. Logan Elm was 25 of 54 and 12 of 15.

TOURNAMENT HIGHLIGHTS
All but four of the past winners of the Bob Bowsher Trophy were present to be introduced at half-time of the final game. Bob Pontious, Jimmy Pickelsimer, Bill Rowley, Bill Evans, Harley Evans, Kenny Kirk, Dave Smith, Harold Gerhardt, Gene Stonerock and Bob Eitel were on hand. Unable to make the trip were Dick and Bob Hoover, Gary Valentine and Lester Saunders.

Roy Dunkle had to substitute for Maxwell Graham the timekeeper.

scored five, Dick and Dan Hollenback swished through four apiece, Jim Rathburn sank a long jump for two and Tom Rathburn sank a foul and tipped in a bucket just before the half ended.

In the second half it appeared Ashville might wrap the game up. They led by 10 points, 49-39, with a most three minutes to go in the third canto, but Spangler staged a one-man rally for the Braves for three successive buckets in the closing minutes of the period to narrow the margin to 49-45.

Russ Gregg's crew came back strong to start the final frame, scoring ten points in a little over two minutes while the Braves could account for only five.

AT THIS point Ashville slowed the game down, electing to take only the good shots.

The Broncos made eight of their last 10 points at the charity line as the Braves committed several personal trying to gain possession of the ball. Bob Parker of Logan Elm fouled out with 2:51 remaining.

Logan Elm scored only 13 points in the final period — an accumulation almost equaled by Tom Rathburn who scored 12. The Broncos sank six from the field and connected on 12 charity tosses for a total of 24 points in the final frame.

And so ends a brilliant career for the Ashville High School in the Pickaway County Tournaments. Since the first tourney was held in 1922 the Broncos have won 17 titles. They have captured championship laurels in eight of the last nine years.

Rathburn proved himself an All-Ohio candidate netting 10 of 20 attempts from the field and dropping through 11 of 14 from the free throw lane, for a total of 31 points.

Dick Hollenback was six of 13 from the field and two for three at the charity stripe for a total of 14. Sonny Roof dropped through four of nine goal attempts and two of three from the foul stripe for a total of 10. Jim Rathburn popped in 10 points also, ripping the nets on five long jumpers in seven attempts. Dan Hollenback shot 75 per cent from the field, hitting on three of four attempts. He sank both of his free throw shots and collected a total of eight points.

FOR LOGAN ELM sharp shooting Chuck Spangler led the way sinking nine of 15 from the field and five of six at the foul lane for a total of 23. Bob Bowsher ... Heart Sunday Campaign Will Open Tomorrow

eration is given to the fact that he played for two years with Bob Hoover. Bob was an outstanding scorer and rebounder in his playing days at Ashville.

Rathburn has not limited his sports achievements to basketball. He has been a member of the Ashville baseball team for three years as a pitcher and an infielder.

Last year he pitched eight games, winning seven and losing one. His only loss came at the hands of Liberty Union, the eventual state champs.

He has consistently batted over .300 and can play shortstop or first base equally well.

Last summer he pitched American Legion baseball and turned in an impressive job.

Tom belongs to the Methodist Church in Ashville and is active in the Methodist youth fellowship.

HEART SUNDAY CAPTAINS — This group of women arranges final strategy for tomorrow's Heart Sunday campaign. Seated from left to right are: Mrs. Lawrence Stome, Mrs. James Dancy, Mrs. Paul Helwagen, Mrs. Edwin Eaton, Mrs. Wilson Lindsey, Mrs. Paul Sarchet, Mrs. Marcus Albright. Standing from the left are Mrs. Roger Hobbie and Mrs. James Arledge. Mrs. Robert Johnson and Mrs. Glen Justice were not present for the picture.

HE IS president of the Varsity A, an honor athletic club at Ashville school. He is also treasurer of the senior class.

Despite his outside activities in sports, the Church and membership in school organizations he has still maintained a creditable B minus average while pursuing college preparatory courses offered at Ashville.

Tom is definitely going to college but as yet has not made up his mind where he will attend. He is interested in a degree in business, specializing in accounting.

Coach Russ Gregg said Rathburn has been a fine representative for the school with his conduct both on and off the cage floor. The village of Ashville may well be proud of Tom Rathburn and the reputation he has earned for the village and the school. He is truly representative of all the qualities needed to win the Bob Bowsher Trophy.

Bob Bowsher, in whose honor the trophy is awarded, was killed in the European theatre of action during World War II.

Although Bowsher was not an outstanding individual athlete he was an exceptionally fine team competitor. He was described by his coaches as being the type of player who makes a team click.

WHILE at Circleville he participated in football, basketball, track and boxing. He lettered in each sport.

After his graduation in 1940, he enrolled at Tusculum College in Tennessee where he played varsity football his freshman year.

The following year he enlisted in the army.

He was wounded in action on July 12, 1944, and died two days later.

CHS Senior Class To Present Plays

The Senior Class play production of Circleville High School will be a series of three one-act plays according to Robert Ransom, speech and dramatics teacher at CHS.

The triple bill will be presented at 8 p. m. March 15 and 16, Ransom said today.

First of the series will be "The Telltale Heart" by Edgar Allan Poe. Jim Spalding, senior class president, will play the lead using a script which he adapted from the original murder mystery.

Following this will be the light-hearted comedy, "The Ugly Duckling" by A. A. Milbrun, a story of romance in the days of knighthood. Student director, Dora Greene, has announced the cast as follows: Dave Troutman, Sherry Fisher, Jack Mader, Susan Cherrington, Keith Thomerson, Bette Fraser and John Adkins.

The final play will be "Sorry, Wrong Number", Carolyn Walters, student director, said the cast will be headed by Martha Samuel with an eleven-member supporting cast.

Tickets may be purchased from members of the senior class and can be reserved at the school beginning March 12.

Student Initiated Into DG Sorority

Katherine Measamer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. G. Measamer, Knollwood Village, has been initiated into Delta Gamma Sorority at Denison University, Granville.

Miss Measamer is a freshman at the university.

Open sandwiches are great for evening snacks. One delicious combination is made this way: arrange thin slices of roast beef on dark bread and center with a mound of chopped jellied consommé topped with horseradish. Men like this! Use fresh grated horseradish if you can; otherwise substitute the drained bottled variety.

Broncs Roll ...

scored five, Dick and Dan Hollenback swished through four apiece, Jim Rathburn sank a long jump for two and Tom Rathburn sank a foul and tipped in a bucket just before the half ended.

In the second half it appeared Ashville might wrap the game up. They led by 10 points, 49-39, with almost three minutes to go in the third canto, but Spangler staged a one-man rally for the Braves for three successive buckets in the closing minutes of the period to narrow the margin to 49-45.

Russ Gregg's crew came back strong to start the final frame, scoring ten points in a little over two minutes while the Braves could account for only five.

AT THIS point Ashville slowed the game down, electing to take only the good shots.

The Broncos made eight of their last 10 points at the charity line as the Braves committed several personal trying to gain possession of the ball. Bob Parker of Logan Elm fouled out with 2:51 remaining.

Logan Elm scored only 13 points in the final period — an accumulation almost equaled by Tom Rathburn who scored 12. The Broncos sank six from the field and connected on 12 charity tosses for a total of 24 points in the final frame.

And so ends a brilliant career for the Ashville High School in the Pickaway County Tournaments. Since the first tourney was held in 1922 the Broncos have won 17 titles. They have captured championship laurels in eight of the last nine years.

Rathburn proved himself an All-Ohio candidate netting 10 of 20 attempts from the field and dropping through 11 of 14 from the free throw lane, for a total of 31 points.

Dick Hollenback was six of 13 from the field and two for three at the charity stripe for a total of 14. Sonny Roof dropped through four of nine goal attempts and two of three from the foul stripe for a total of 10. Jim Rathburn popped in 10 points also, ripping the nets on five long jumpers in seven attempts. Dan Hollenback shot 75 per cent from the field, hitting on three of four attempts. He sank both of his free throw shots and collected a total of eight points.

FOR LOGAN ELM sharp shooting Chuck Spangler led the way sinking nine of 15 from the field and five of six at the foul lane for a total of 23. Dave Horn was six for eight and two for two at the charity stripe for a total of 14 as he turned in another excellent performance for Coach Keith Merrin. Danny Hicks connected on four of eight from the field and dropped through his only foul shot scoring nine.

As a team Ashville hit 28 of 54 attempts from the field and made 17 of 22 at the charity stripe. Logan Elm was 25 of 54 and 12 of 15.

of the final game. Somebody reported that Graham's car was on fire, but it turned out to be a false report. He was soon back at the scorers' bench ready to resume his duties.

Bill Cook, secretary of the Pickaway County Agriculture Society, repaired some leaks in the roof of the Coliseum between games. He used the age-old remedy of placing buckets under the dripping water.

A jubilant Ashville crew tore down the nets at either end of the coliseum, and after a round of picture taking it looked like Coach Russ Gregg was headed for the showers.

Following the game trophies were presented to Ashville, as county league and tournament winners and to Logan Elm for runner-up spots in the league and tournament.

Scioto received a trophy for third place, and Williamsport got the game ball for finishing fourth in the tournament.

Ashville and Logan Elm will represent Pickaway County in the Central District Class A Tournament at Granville.

The all-county team was named and The Herald awarded the Bob Bowsher trophy to Tom Rathburn following the final game.

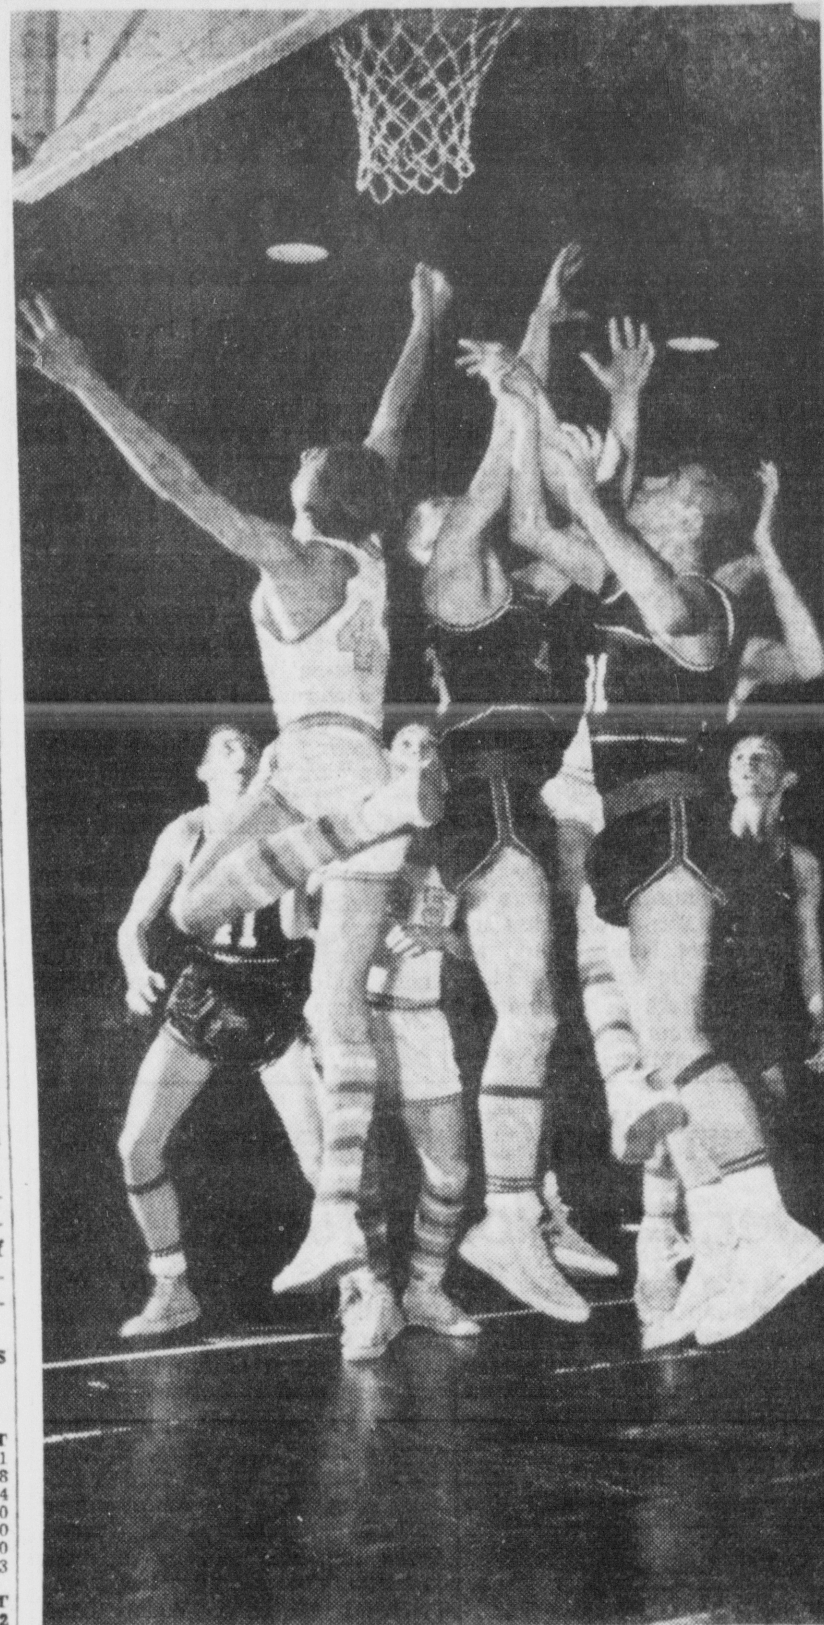

Benis Lutz, of Ashville, performed an exceptional job as tournament manager. He was worthy of the special congratulations accorded him by County Superintendent George McDowell.

Attendance at last night's games was estimated 2,132.

First 2,000-Mph. Bomber Taking Shape in Far West

PALMDALE, Calif. (AP)—The first 2,000-mile-an-hour B70 bomber, prototype of airliners that someday will span the continent in 90 minutes, is taking shape in a huge hangar on the Mojave Desert.

Newsman got their first look—without cameras—Friday at some of the giant sections being put together to form the 185-foot-long, 250-ton monster.

The first B70 should be completed by September and ready for flight testing before the year ends. Plans call for two others to be built—and that's all.

Despite its brute size and force—the B70's six jet engines kick out twice the thrust of the Redstone rocket that shot Alan B. Shepard Jr. into space—there's a big question about the worth of the giant bomber.

After the first three have been tested, the administration will decide whether to build more or put the money into missiles.

More than a billion dollars already have been spent. Three hundred million more will be added to the bill by the time flight testing is finished.

Meantime, more than 1,000 specialists are rushing the first B70 to completion at the North American Aviation, Inc., assembly plant here.

Newsman saw 6-foot-tall workmen standing upright inside the section of the tail that will house the B70's powerplant. Six J93 jet engines, each as large as an automobile, will be installed side by side under the bomber's huge triangular tail.

The tail, measuring almost 100 feet across, actually is the B70's wing. Up front, where wings are placed on conventional planes, are two stubby control surfaces to counteract the plane's tendency to tilt downward.

A spokesman explained that the wing was moved back to the tail to take advantage of the shock wave generated by the plane's speed, which is three times faster than sound. This pressure wave flowing back from the nose is supposed to give the B70 greater lift and speed.

The B70 is designed to carry only four crewmen. The rest of its 10-foot-diameter fuselage is for radar instruments, fuel and nuclear weapons.

Future airliner versions should be able to carry 100 to 150 passengers.

Today's fastest bomber is the 1,400-mile-an-hour B58.

If it works as designed, the B70 will be able to cruise at 2,000 miles per hour for more than 6,000 miles with a full bomb load. The nearest thing to it in size, the 157-foot-long B52 bomber, cruises only one-third as fast.

Nurses' Meeting Highlighted With Slides of the Orient

Twenty-seven members attended a meeting of the Pickaway County Registered Nurses Association Tuesday evening in the home of Miss Barbara Barthelmas, Route 2.

The program highlighted the meeting—Miss Barthelmas presented colored picture slides taken during her trip to the Orient. Her 18,000-mile trip was also the subject of a talk she presented to the group. While on tour she visited with families, formerly of Circleville, now living in the Philippines, Hong Kong and an extended visit with her brother in Japan.

The series of pictures showed the beauty of the Orient and islands, its people and culture.

Mrs. Orville West, president, presided during the business meeting. Volunteers were called for the Well-Child Clinic and it was announced that Mrs. H.W. Frass and Miss Margaret Goode would assist at the clinic on March 14.

Several projects were submitted to the group from the Ways and Means Committee. Other committee reports were read and approved.

Members decided to sponsor a bake sale on March 10, at Kochheiser Hardware Store and were reminded to have their donations for the sale delivered before 8:30 a.m. the day of the sale.

Mrs. Franklin Mace, chairman of the Student Nurse Fund Committee, reported that a recent inquiry at Riverside Methodist Hospital disclosed that no students from Pickaway County were in need of financial assistance from the association.

A new revised constitution was read and approved.

Following the business meeting and program, refreshments were served by Mrs. H.W. Frass, Mrs. Clifford Roll and Mrs. Arthur Bowman.

The next meeting, March 20, will be in the home of Mrs. Robert Johnson, 585 Woodlawn Ave., with Mrs. James Fausnaugh, Mrs. Kenneth Bell and Mrs. Byron Gulick assisting.

The program will be given by Dr. F.W. Anderson.

Garden Club Meeting Set For Thursday

A meeting of the Circleville Garden Club will be held 7:30 p. m. Thursday in the Landmark Town and Country Store on W. Mound St.

Roll call will be answered by the question, "What's blooming in your garden?" Mrs. Paige Boyer, Chillicothe, will speak on "Future plans of the Ohio Association of Garden Clubs."

Guest speaker will be Dick Wagner from the Ohio Farm Bureau Cooperative Assn. He is a graduate of Purdue University.

Wagner will display and discuss new garden supplies.

The exhibit class of contemporary design, using a minimum of fresh material, is titled "Branches and Stones." Mrs. Boyer will comment on arrangements and conduct a brief workshop on the entries.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Sweigart and Mrs. E. E. Wolf will host the meeting.

Catholic Youth Elect Officers

The CYC of St. Joseph's Catholic Church held its annual election of officers Sunday following a Communion breakfast with Msgr. George Mason and the Rev. Father John Dreese as guests.

Gary Finley was elected president of the Catholic youth group; Jim Houser was elected vice president; Chuck Smith, treasurer; and Pam Speicher, secretary.

Tom Stocklen, outgoing president, conducted the business meeting following the breakfast. He indicated that redecoration of a room in the school basement was progressing and announced that upon completion of the work monthly meeting of the CYC would be conducted there.

The next meeting will be held at 5 p. m. March 18. Members will attend the 10:15 a. m. Mass on the meeting day and receive Holy Communion as a group.

Birthday Party Fetes Eight-Year-Old

Linda Lou Fausnaugh, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Fausnaugh, Route 3, celebrated her eighth birthday Thursday with a party at her home given by her parents.

During the afternoon, Linda's 24 classmates from Jackson Twp. School were served refreshments by the honored guest's mother.

Dinner guests were Nancy, Barbara, Karen, Jamie and Mike Fausnaugh, John and Brian Eitel. Evening guests were Mrs. Lucy Fausnaugh, Mrs. Joan Bachman and Gregg, Mr. and Mrs. Weldon Forst and Martha Kay and Peachie all of Grove City.

Overnight guests of the Fausnaughs were Nancy Bidwell and Barbara Yerian, classmates of Linda.

The CYC of St. Joseph's Catholic Church held its annual election of officers Sunday following a Communion breakfast with Msgr. George Mason and the Rev. Father John Dreese as guests.

Gary Finley was elected president of the Catholic youth group; Jim Houser was elected vice president; Chuck Smith, treasurer; and Pam Speicher, secretary.

Tom Stocklen, outgoing president, conducted the business meeting following the breakfast. He indicated that redecoration of a room in the school basement was progressing and announced that upon completion of the work monthly meeting of the CYC would be conducted there.

The next meeting will be held at 5 p. m. March 18. Members will attend the 10:15 a. m. Mass on the meeting day and receive Holy Communion as a group.

Birthday Party Fetes Eight-Year-Old

Linda Lou Fausnaugh, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Fausnaugh, Route 3, celebrated her eighth birthday Thursday with a party at her home given by her parents.

During the afternoon, Linda's 24 classmates from Jackson Twp. School were served refreshments by the honored guest's mother.

Dinner guests were Nancy, Barbara, Karen, Jamie and Mike Fausnaugh, John and Brian Eitel.

Evening guests were Mrs. Lucy Fausnaugh, Mrs. Joan Bachman and Gregg, Mr. and Mrs. Weldon Forst and Martha Kay and Peachie all of Grove City.

Overnight guests of the Fausnaughs were Nancy Bidwell and Barbara Yerian, classmates of Linda.

Broncs Place Two On All-Star Team

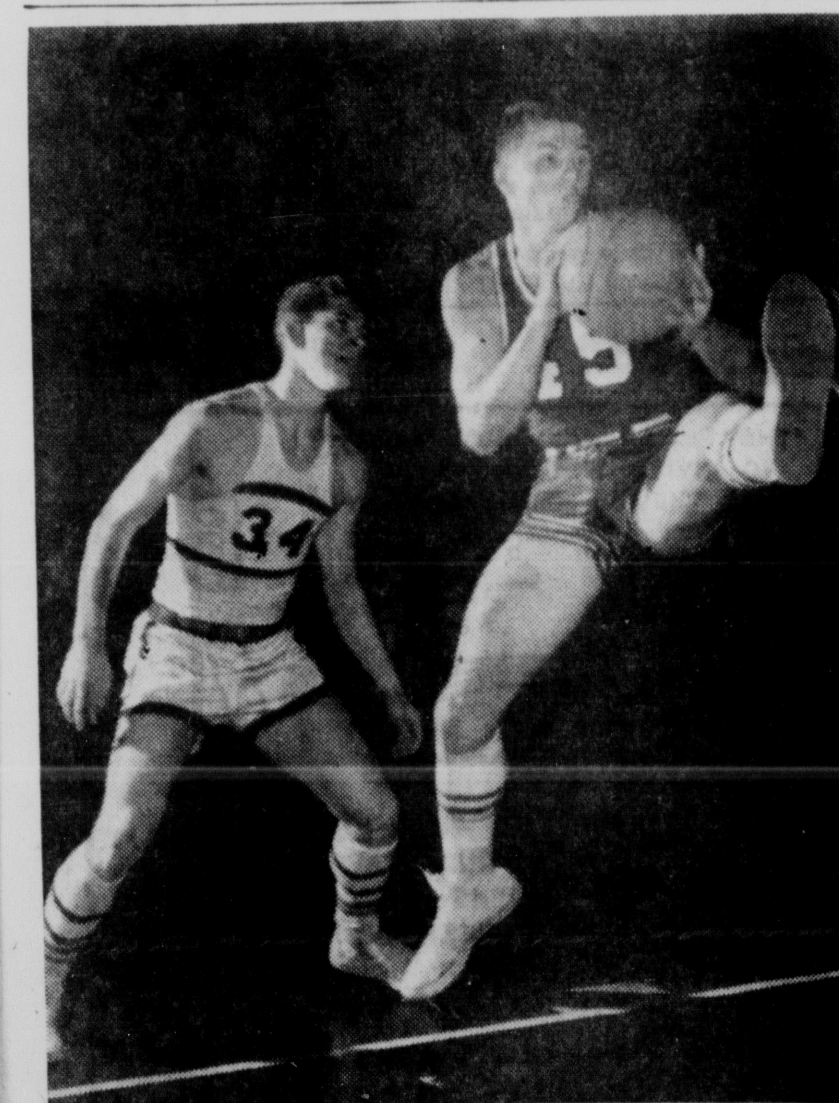

Ashville, winner of the Pickaway County basketball league and tournament crowns, was top place getter in the annual All-Star cage selection last night.

The Broncos landed Tom Rathburn and Dick Hollenback, their two All-Ohio Candidates, on the first team choice. Other berths went to Logan Elm, Williamsport and Walnut.

Chuck Spangler, Logan Elm's fine outside shooter, was a top selection for the Braves. Rick Pond, Williamsport's all-around performer, landed a first team slot and so did Walnut's hustling Larry Leist.

A second team position went to Larry Beard, Jackson's sensational sophomore scoring whizz. Also on the second five were Logan Elm's sturdy center, Danny Hicks, Scioto's consistently good performer Bob Whiteside and Jim Albright and Darby's speedy Darvin Conley.

The first team mythical selection is made up of three seniors and two juniors. Rathburn, Hollenback and Spangler are the final-year performers, while Pond and Leist each have another year to go.

Scioto Nips Deers In 57-55 Thriller

Scioto's Buffaloes defeated the Deers of Williamsport last night in one of the most thrilling Pickaway County Tournament Basketball Games witnessed in recent years. By downing the Deers 57-55, the Buffaloes gained third place in the tourney.

The Coliseum's rafters shook with cheers as Scioto came from an 8-point third quarter deficit to a two point win in the final three seconds. James Albright calmly sank two charity tosses on a one and one situation, with only three seconds of playing time remaining.

The Buffaloes jumped off to a 16-12 first quarter advantage paced mainly by Albright, Mike Alloy and Terry Melvin. They seemed to cool off somewhat as the Deers caught fire midway through the second stanza by scoring 13 of 14 points on their way to a 31-24 halftime lead. Balanced scoring by all five starters paced the Deers in their second quarter onslaught.

Williamsport maintained its margin throughout the fast and furious third quarter and roared to the top, 47-39, going into the disastrous fourth quarter.

The Deers looked like they were on their way to victory midway through the stanza as they built up a 40-29 advantage led by Dick Gerhardt and Brooks McCoy and were consistently out rebounded the Buffaloes.

Down 49-41, Scioto suddenly started a display of fireworks. In the final six minutes of play the Buffaloes completely dominated play. The sparkplug for the quintet was Terry Melvin who scored six consecutive points to tie the game and set the stage for Albright's heroics.

The game's leading scorer was Melvin who scored 17 points on six goals and five charity tosses. Bob Whiteside of Scioto and McCoy of Williamsport each hit 13. Dick Gerhardt found the range for 12 on six goals, and Rick Pond hit 10. Mike Alloy also dropped in 10, hitting some fine drive shots. Albright, the game's hero, hit for 11.

Scioto jumped off to a quick 2-0 lead on a driving layup by Albright. After Bruce Willis hit a free throw, Melvin connected on a long jump shot from the corner. A fast break basket by Willis and a turn-around jump by McCoy gave the Deers their first lead of the evening at 5-4.

With the score tied eight all, the Buffaloes hit for eight straight points. Alloy hit a short jump and two rebound layups and Albright dropped in a hook and a fast break layup.

Scioto maintained a slim margin until the Deers jumped back on top at 22-21. They increased their margin to 31-24 at halftime. Some fine defensive play and well-executed fast breaks marked the second quarter action.

The two teams played on nearly even terms in the third stanza. Scioto hit for 15 and Williamsport for 14. Melvin and Whiteside kept the Buffaloes in the game as they scored all of the team's third quarter points.

Alloy hit a short jump shot to start the fourth quarter and narrow the gap to 47-41. After Willis hit a jumper for the Deers, Whiteside scored on a tip-in and Alloy on another short jump to narrow the margin to 49-45.

The Deers were bound and determined that Scioto wasn't going to get any closer as Don Steinhauser hit a long corner jump shot and Gerhardt a rebound tip. Down 53-45, the Buffaloes applied a full court press which completely baffled the Deers.

Albright hit a nice layup, and Murphy a corner jump to narrow the count to 53-49. Rick Pond made good on two free throws to push the lead to 55-49. Terry Melvin then sank four consecutive free throws and a jump shot to tie the contest at 55 all.

With 38 seconds remaining on the clock Scioto called time out. The winners put the ball in play and ran a stall pattern until Albright drove for a shot. He was fouled in the process and he calmly sank two free throws to insure the Buffaloes of a victory.

There were only three seconds remaining on the clock when Williamsport took the ball out of bounds. A desperation shot as the buzzer sounded was off the mark.

The Deers played the last 1:56 without Brooks McCoy who left via the foul route. They sorely missed his fine play in the final stages of the game.

An all-county team was selected after the championship game. Scioto placed two boys on the second team, Bob Whiteside and Jim Albright.

Rick Pond of Williamsport was selected as one of the first team players and Don Steinhauser received honorable mention.

Wildcats Trip Union Furnace

Laurelville earned a berth in the sectional tournament at New Lexington with a 60-53 victory over Union Furnace at Logan High School last night.

The Wildcats, pushing their record to 12-7 for the season, moved ahead, 15-9, in the first quarter for a lead they never relinquished. The winners were outscored from the field but more than made the difference at the foul line.

Ed Whisler's 23 points and Max Young were giant factors for Laurelville. Whisler, a 6-2 performer, raked the nets for 14 points in the last quarter while Young opened up the defense on long jump shots.

Oscar Edwards and Mike Mercer were the leading scorers for Union Furnace with 10 points each. Laurelville showed a 41-34 edge in the rebounding department, a vital factor in the victory.

DECIDING TALLY — The net still dances as Jim Albright drops in the second of two foul tosses to give Scioto team a 57-55 victory over Williamsport in the consolation game of the county tournament last night. Only three seconds remained as Albright swished the nets. Watching from the left are Aaron Harper (42) Williamsport, Bob Whiteside (43) Scioto, Dick Gerhardt (43) Williamsport, Lee Murphy (41) Scioto and Rick Pond (31) Williamsport.

Circleville Edged At Pleasant View

A bid for win No. 5 last night by the Circleville Tiger cage squad was unsuccessful at Pleasant View.

The Panthers, gaining revenge for an earlier defeat pinned on them in Circleville, handed the Tigers a 52-43 setback. Although Pleasant View led most of the way, the outcome wasn't decided until the final quarter.

Again the Tigers suffered a disastrous third quarter, managing only five points in the cold frame. The hosts, meanwhile hit for 11 to put a damper on Tiger visions of a comeback.

CHS opened up for 21 points in the fourth quarter, but Pleasant View maintained its winning gap by dropping in 16.

CIRCLEVILLE actually outgunned Pleasant View from the field, making good on 18 attempts. The Panthers marked 17 two-pointers. The difference came at the foul line where PV worked the nets over for 18 points. The Tigers collected only seven.

CHS failed to place a man in double figures, although seven players hit the scoring column. David Hannahs was high with nine. Jim Wellington collected eight and Sam Weller, Bob Waple, Cleson Thomas and Garold Dade hit six each.

Big Dale Creamer was the top offensive star for Pleasant View as he used his height to good advantage for 21 points. Hakes followed with 11 and Barry Johnson contributed 10.

Pleasant View rushed away to a 16-10 first quarter lead and held the same six-point margin at halftime, 25-19. The hosts doubled the gap in the third frame by posting a 36-24 count.

ELSEWHERE in the SCO, Wilmington notched its 13th loop win with a 74-65 verdict over Wellington C. H. and Hillsboro carried Franklin Heights, 83-41.

Circleville resumes action today in a battle with Columbus North in the Central District Class AA tournament in Columbus. The game is scheduled to start at noon in the Fairgrounds Coliseum.

Young Tigers Snare Second Tourney Win

Circleville's freshman basketball team won its second game in the Chillicothe tournament last night with a 64-53 victory over Logan.

The Circleville frosh encountered little difficulty after breezing to a 25-9 lead in the first quarter. They had doubled the score on their opponents at halftime, 38-19. Logan rallied in the final chapter, but not enough to overtake the young Tigers.

Three of Coach Jim Shaw's stalwarts scored 16 points or better. Leading the way were John Thomas and John Maxwell with 18 each, followed by Chet Iery with 16.

Nixon and Dupler were high for Logan with 12 each.

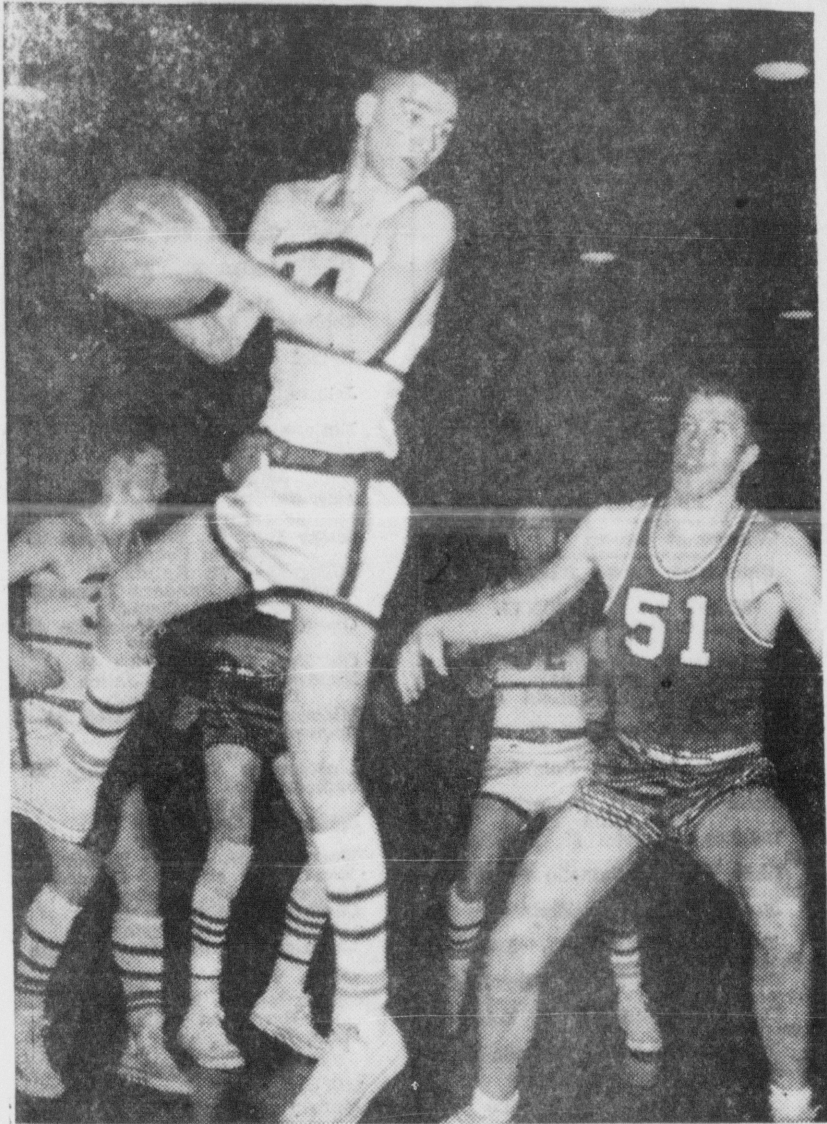

The CHS unit, already owning a 45-44 overtime win over Paint Valley, is scheduled 7 p. m. Tuesday in further tourney action against the freshmen of Chillicothe.

Beard was the only sophomore on either selection. On the second team Hicks and Albright are juniors and Whiteside and Conley seniors.

Rathburn, winner of this year's Bob Bowsher Trophy, capped play in the county last night with 31 points as he led his Bronco team to the crown. He has been an outstanding cager for Ashville for the last three years.

Hollenback and Spangler are noted for their deadly accuracy from far out and for ability to drive for the hoop when the occasion presents itself. Both have been mainstays for their teams the last two years.

Pond and Leist also are exceptional cagers in all departments. Both gained prominence this season with their scrap and hustle throughout the long 1961-62 schedule.

Delvin Miller, who won the Hambletonian last year with Harlan Dean, is tutoring Spry Rodney, an ace filly, for the event this year.

Gonzales, Molina Are Pitted on TV

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP)—Sixth ranked welterweight Manuel Gonzales and ex-Marine Louis Molina make their national television debut tonight, but only because lightweight champion Joe Brown has tonsillitis.

Brown's title match against Carlos Ortiz, scheduled for tonight, had to be postponed because of the champion's illness, but the television spot was open and Gonzales and Molina were signed to fill it. ABC will televise it at 10 p.m. (EST).

Gonzales, 22, is from Odessa, Tex. and is a stablemate of Brown. He has won 30 of his 37 pro fights, scoring 10 knockouts. Molina is 25. He had his last

Jim Bunning of the Detroit Tigers has fanned 177 or more batters a season in his five full years in the American League.

Fight Tuesday in his home town, San Jose, Calif. He scored a first-round knockout over Len Matthews of Philadelphia. Molina has been campaigning chiefly as a lightweight and is undefeated in 19 bouts.

DECIDING TALLY — The net still dances as Jim Albright drops in the second of two foul tosses to give Scioto team a 57-55 victory over Williamsport in the consolation game of the county tournament last night. Only three seconds remained as Albright swished the nets. Watching from the left are Aaron Harper (42) Williamsport, Bob Whiteside (43) Scioto, Dick Gerhardt (43) Williamsport, Lee Murphy (41) Scioto and Rick Pond (31) Williamsport. Circleville Edged At Pleasant View

A bid for win No. 5 last night by the Circleville Tiger cage squad was unsuccessful at Pleasant View.

The Panthers, gaining revenge for an earlier defeat pinned on them in Circleville, landed the Tigers a 52-43 setback. Although Pleasant View led most of the way, the outcome wasn't decided until the final quarter.

Again the Tigers suffered a disastrous third quarter, managing only five points in the cold frame. The hosts, meanwhile hit for 11 to put a damper on Tiger visions of a comeback.

CHS opened up for 21 points in the fourth quarter, but Pleasant View maintained its winning gap by dropping in 16.

CIRCLEVILLE actually outgained Pleasant View from the field, making good on 18 attempts. The Panthers marked 17 two-pointers. The difference came at the foul line where PV worked the nets over for 18 points. The Tigers collected only seven.

CHS failed to place a man in double figures, although seven players hit the scoring column. David Hannahs was high with nine.

Jim Wellington collected eight and Sam Weller, Bob Waple, Clesson Thomas and Garold Dade hit six each.

Big Dale Creamer was the top offensive star for Pleasant View as he used his height to good advantage for 21 points. Hakes followed with 11 and Barry contributed 10.

Pleasant View rushed away to a 16-10 first quarter lead and held the same six-point margin at halftime, 25-19. The hosts doubled the lead in the third frame by posting a 36-24 count.

ELSEWHERE in the SCO, Wilmington notched its 13th loop win with a 74-65 verdict over Wellington C. H. and Hillsboro scored Franklin Heights, 83-41.

Circleville resumes action today in a battle with Columbus North in the Central District Class AA tournament in Columbus. The game is scheduled to start at noon in the Fairgrounds Coliseum.

Young Tigers Snare Second Tourney Win

Circleville's freshman basketball team won its second game in the Chillicothe tournament last night with a 64-53 victory over Logan.

The Circleville frosh encountered little difficulty after breezing to a 25-9 lead in the first quarter. They had doubled the score on their opponents at halftime, 38-19. Logan rallied in the final chapter, but not enough to overtake the young Tigers.

Three of Coach Jim Shaw's stalwarts scored 16 points or better. Leading the way were John Thomas and John Maxwell with 18 each, followed by Chet Iery with 16.

Nixon and Dupler were high for Logan with 12 each.

The CHS unit, already owning a 45-44 overtime win over Paint Valley, is scheduled 7 p. m. Tuesday in further tourney action against the freshmen of Chillicothe.

Star Jerry Lucas Contends He Will Not Turn Pro Cager

Jerry Lucas... a serious young man

By WALTER L. JOHNS
Central Press Sports Editor
COLUMBUS, O. — The "Jerry Lucas Story," which has had a long first-run on the boards away from Broadway, is about to close.

And the star of the show, a crew-cut giant who made the production click, is retiring even though he is only 21 years old, and the big money which he could command is ready and waiting if he wants to continue.

The greatest amateur basketball player in the world, perhaps, is going to stay just that. And those reported $100,000 offers aren't going to change his mind.

We sat with Jerry in the Beta house off High Street and talked and the 6'7 1/2" All-American who has led the Ohio State Buckeyes to another fabulous season repeated again and again that he was through with basketball after this season and the pro offers didn't interest him.

We asked the No. 1 player of the No. 1 team why and his serious countenance made you believe he was giving it to you straight:

"This will be my last year. I don't want to play pro basketball. It's a horrible life. You play over 100 games a year and make a physical wreck out of yourself. I love basketball but there are other things in life. Money isn't the only thing. After college there is only one way to go. I admit that I don't know what I'd like to do but I'm thinking seriously about law school and probably will try for a master's degree in management."

"I'm serious about this. I'm serious and a dead-pan when I walk out on the basketball floor. They're my enemy and I'm out to win. But when it's over they're my friends and I don't talk basketball. I've played it since I was a kid. I played it in the backyard for six to eight hours a day. When I made the Olympic trip and the Russian trip I played basketball for 20 months straight. I lost 25 pounds on that Russian trip. I've had some trouble with my knees. They swell and get weak. I think maybe it's because of the continual jumping on the cement floors in the old days."

Jerry is a senior at Ohio State, an honor student in marketing. He takes such courses as marketing, management, business law, philosophy and sociology. He has two quarters to go but he plans to drop out after this quarter to fulfill some 40 speaking engagements. He plans to return in September.

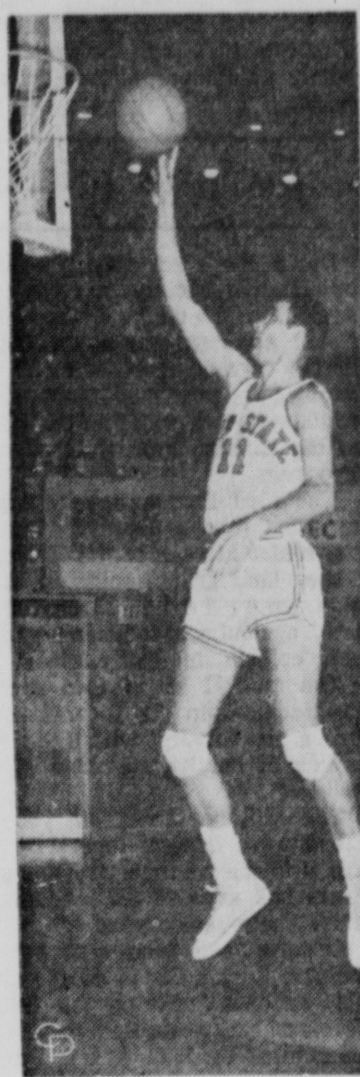

His wife, the former Treva Geib, who was a classmate as a freshman and whom he met at a fraternity picnic the year before, is a junior at Ohio State. She's not in school this quarter but working as a clerk-typist in a bank to help the two get along. Jerry worked as a counselor in a college preparatory clinic last summer.

Even coaching doesn't interest him. "Except," he said "something like Little Leaguers."

A very intelligent young man, with piercing eyes (he has 20-10 vision) Jerry talks quietly, weighs his words. He talks about world affairs with the smoothness of a college professor. Russia is his favorite subject.

"My trip to Russia was not only to play basketball," he says. "I wanted to see the country and find out about their people. As I saw it their people are just like we are, except their heads of state. All athletes are alike, including the Russians. They want homes and security. The people over there only know what the Communists want them to know. I feel, though, that in some small way our visit, like that of other Americans, will result in their telling others what Americans are like. I'd like to go back there some day for another visit."

Other things of interest about Jerry... His parents were born in Kentucky, moved to Middletown, O. At Middletown he grew so big he played on the sixth grade team when he was in the fourth grade... He threw the shot and discus in high school, played first base in baseball and end in football... He was a member of the Middletown cage team which won 76 straight games... He had 100 college offers, but was set on Ohio State... He drinks a half gallon of milk a day, doesn't watch his diet, sleeps eight or nine hours... He likes to read, watch pro football and play bridge... He likes golf, shoots in 90's but doesn't get much time to play... His parents gave him a set of golf clubs on high school graduation day... He drives a 1955 Chevy around the campus... Gets 50 letters a day, tries to answer them all... He has had many job offers... Has 10 watches given as gifts, 30-40 plaques... Believes mental attitude is one key to athletics, said many fine athletes lack desire and motivation... Doesn't think the big boys like Wilt Chamberlain should be penalized by lifting the baskets or changing the game.

If the Chicago Majors win the second half Eastern Division title in the American Basketball League a large share of the credit probably will go to Tony Jackson, the former All-America at St. Johns University of New York.

Jackson has the knack of coming through in the pinch and the Majors, as a result, have been winning close games. He threw in the key baskets that helped beat San Francisco on Thursday. He did it again Friday night as the Majors pulled out a 125-123 overtime victory over the Hawaii Chiefs and tied the idle Pittsburgh Rens for first place in the Eastern Division.

The Cleveland Pipers stayed in the thick of contention for the Eastern crown, half a game back of the Rens and Majors, with a 138-121 triumph over the New York Tapers.

Bearcats Must Win To Stay in Running For Berth in NCAA

Cincinnati faces the latest key assignment in its long string of basketball successes tonight—a victory over Wichita.

The Bearcats, gunning for their fifth straight Missouri Valley Conference title and second national championship in a row, could very well blow both if they don't handle the Wheatshockers.

Cincinnati and Bradley are tied for the league lead at 9-2 with the 'Cats closing out their league schedule in the home game tonight. The Braves finish at St. Louis next Saturday. If Cincinnati wins and St. Louis upends Bradley, the Bearcats are in. If both front-runners win, they'll settle matters on a neutral court later, with the survivor carrying the Missouri Valley banner into the NCAA title tournament.

But if the Bearcats don't come through tonight—and they were edged at Wichita 52-51 two months ago—it could mean the end of a reign.

Cincinnati-Wichita is only one of the big ones on tap tonight. UCLA can nail down at least a tie for the Big Five championship by beating Stanford at Los Angeles. The Uclans marched a step closer to the title Friday night, beating California 68-62. And a victory for Yale against last-place Columbia would clinch at least a share of the Ivy League crown for the Eli Yalps nipped its closest rival, Cornell, 48-47 Friday night.

Colorado and Kansas State, heading into the stretch of their duel for Big Eight supremacy, warm up for their showdown next week with home games tonight. Colorado, 9-0 in the conference, takes on Iowa State and Kansas State, 8-1, meets Oklahoma.

In the Southeastern Conference, pacesetter Mississippi State entertains Louisiana State while Kentucky, one game back of the Bulldogs, is at Alabama. Prime games in the Southwest are Texas Tech at Texas and Texas Christian at Southern Methodist. Tech and SMU head the standings at 8-3, but Texas A&M climbed to within one-half game of the leaders Friday night with an 89-79 decision over Arkansas.

Utah State and Colorado State University, the two contenders for the Skyline's NCAA berth, have conference tests. Montana is at Utah State while CSU plays at Wyoming. The Utags and CSU have identical records, 9-2 in the league and 18-5 overall.

Friday night, Idaho sprang a major upset by handing tenth-ranked Oregon State its third straight setback, 52-51. The Vandals, stressing defense and possession, built up a small lead and then withstood the Beavers' last-gasp rally.

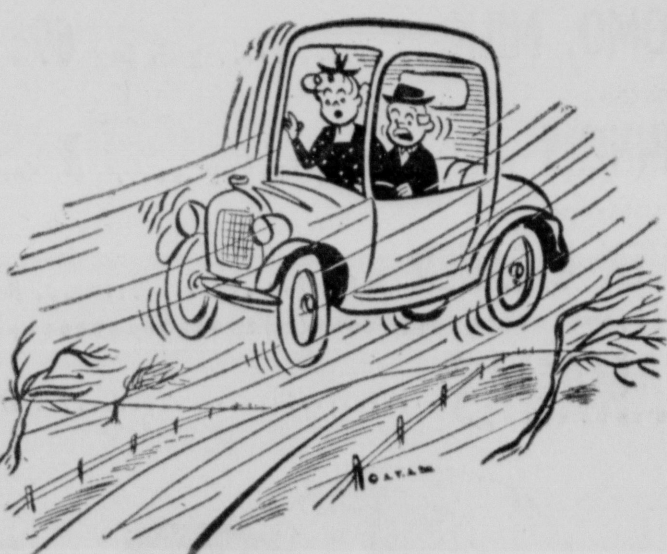

Houston tripped Southern California 55-51, throwing a full-court press at the Trojans and holding them without a field goal for a 13-minute span in the second half. The Cougars, who overcame a seven-point deficit, won their 20th in 25 starts for their best record in history.

Star Jerry Lucas Contends He Will Not Turn Pro Cager

Jerry Lucas... a serious young man

By WALTER L. JOHNS
Central Press Sports Editor
COLUMBUS, O. — The "Jerry Lucas Story," which has had a long first-run on the boards away from Broadway, is about to close.

And the star of the show, a crew-cut giant who made the production click, is retiring even though he is only 21 years old, and the big money which he could command is ready and waiting if he wants to continue.

The greatest amateur basketball player in the world, perhaps, is going to stay just that. And those reported $100,000 offers aren't going to change his mind.

We sat with Jerry in the Beta house off High Street and talked and the 6'7½" All-American who has led the Ohio State Buckeyes to another fabulous season repeated again and again that he was through with basketball after this season and the pro offers didn't interest him.

We asked the No. 1 player of the No. 1 team why and his serious countenance made you believe he was giving it to you straight:

"This will be my last year. I don't want to play basketball. It's a horrible life. You play over 100 games a year and make a physical wreck out of yourself. I love basketball but there are other things in life. Money isn't the only thing. After college there is only one way to go. I admit that I don't know what I'd like to do but I'm thinking seriously about law school and probably will try for a master's degree in management."

"I'm serious about this. I'm serious and a dead-end when I walk out on the basketball floor. They're my enemy and I'm out to win. But when it's over they're my friends and I don't talk basketball. I've played it since I was a kid. I played it in the backyard for six to eight hours a day. When I made the Olympic trip and the Russian trip I played basketball for 20 months straight. I lost 25 pounds on that Russian trip. I've had some trouble with my knees. They swell and get weak. I think maybe it's because of the continual jumping on the cement floors in the old days."

Jerry is a senior at Ohio State, an honor student in marketing. He takes such courses as marketing, management, business law, philosophy and sociology. He has two quarters to go but he plans to drop out after this quarter to fulfill some 40 speaking engagements. He plans to return in September.

WATER IN ASHVILLE — Plenty of water abounded in the northeast section of Ashville following last night's surge of rainfall. About eight inches covered the lawn of this home along Circleville Ave. The impact has prompted residents of the area to press for a proposed new sewer line.
(Photo by Ron Warren)

Sewer Line Need Eyed

Ashville Area Hit By Storm Impact

Ashville's northeast residential section was hard hit by last night's 1.51 inches of freezing rain.

The village, currently debating a storm sewer project for the area, affected, was faced with a surplus of water last night. The basements of at least seven homes along Circleville Ave. were flooded. Pools of water in several lawns measured about eight inches deep.

Residents of the area presently are discussing the Pickaway County, Ashville, Teays Valley Storm Sewer District General Plan as a possible remedy for the flooding. Cost of the project has been estimated at $68,000. The project would be financed by assessments on benefited property owners.

According to sponsors of the sewer plan, rapid growth of the village, especially in the northeast section, has created real drainage difficulties. The current construction of the new Teays Valley High School in the same area has prompted additional problems, they added.

THE PROPOSED sewer project would service the new high school which is scheduled for opening this coming school term.

Backers of the project said the new sewer line would start with a 27-inch main and extend to a 36-inch outlet which would follow the Circleville - Lockbourne - Eastern Road south to Walnut Creek. They said the plan would serve as a relief valve for the village's entire sewage system, both storm and sanitary.

Spokesmen said Ashville east of Park St. is the section most affected by the contemplated sewer project. Most of the assessments would be drawn from this residential area, they noted.

Residents of the area said last night's storm was mild compared to other heavy downpours of the past. They claimed that six or seven families usually are immediately affected by consistent rains and that additional homes face problems shortly after.

Several home owners pressed water pumps into service last night. Most of them were utilized for several hours.

Mayor Richard Bozman said the constant flooding results in indirect expenditures to the village due to damage to streets. He said most of the existing drainage depends on old four to six-inch field tile.

Red China Says U.S. Threatens Its Security

Yank Military Aid To South Viet Nam Comes under Fire

TOKYO (AP)—Peiping charged today that U. S. military support of South Viet Nam seriously affected the security of Red China and Communist North Viet Nam and threatened the peace of Asia.

The United States "is already in an undeclared war in South Viet Nam," Peiping said in a statement broadcast by the New China news agency.

Peiping denounced what it called the armed U. S. intervention in South Viet Nam.

"This state of affairs cannot be allowed to continue," the Peiping statement said. "The Chinese (Communist) government holds that the cochairmen of the 1954 Geneva Conference and the countries concerned must promptly hold consultations and take appropriate measures to eliminate the serious danger of war in southern Viet Nam."

Peiping said, "Recently, the United States of America has become more and more bold and unscrupulous in its intervention and aggression in southern Viet Nam."

The statement called on the United States "to stop at once its armed intervention in South Viet Nam and immediately withdraw all its military men and equipment there."

Peiping said, "The armed U.S. imperialist intervention and aggression in southern Viet Nam constitutes a direct threat to the security" of North Viet Nam and "it also seriously affects the security of (Communist) China and the peace of Asia."

The United States has about 4,000 troops in South Viet Nam to train and supply the pro-Western government of President Ngo Dinh Diem. The Americans are not regarded as combat forces but have orders to shoot back if fired upon. They go on some military missions with South Vietnamese units as advisers.

Peiping said the new U.S. "military assistance command marks the beginning of a new stage in the armed U.S. intervention in southern Viet Nam."

"This command," it said, "is by no means merely one for military assistance, but an operation of command of the U.S. imperialists for direct participation."

"The United States has openly indicated that U.S. military men will shoot back if shot at. This shows in fact that the United States is already in an 'undeclared' war in southern Viet Nam."

The Peiping Foreign Ministry also accused the Kennedy administration of "preparing for waging three kinds of wars — nuclear war, conventional war and 'special warfare' — since its assumption of power acting on the will of the big U.S. monopoly groups."

Firemen Summoned To Minor Blaze

Circleville Firemen were called to a vacant home on Weldon Ave. at 3:27 p. m. yesterday to douse a minor interior blaze.

Firemen said rags burning caused only minor damage. They said the fire possibly was started by children playing in the house.

According to firemen, the home is owned by a Jones family.

less than 450 feet.

One death was reported which could possibly be attributed to the storm.

In Lima a truck driver said he did not see 12-year-old Jimmy Eberle run into a street. The youngster, however, was first struck by a car and knocked under the wheels of the truck.

No other serious accidents or injuries were reported.

Clinton County was among the hardest hit in the ice-coated southwestern area. The hospital in Wilmington lost its power for several hours after electricity went out, but operated by an auxiliary system. Blanchester was blacked out all night and many other communities were dark for hours.

The ice even stopped trains in eastern Clermont County. The power failures cut off automatic signals and the trains came to a halt. Later operation was restored at a slow pace under manual signaling.

Falling electric lines also stopped several high school basketball games abruptly when gymnasiums suddenly were blacked out.

North of Ohio's U.S. 40 belt high winds sent the heavy snowfall drifting severely.

Traffic on the Ohio Turnpike was placed under a 40 m.p.h. speed but the toll road remained open.

Many other routes in the northern counties, however, became impassable and motorists were stranded by the scores.

A 10-inch snowfall was reported in Geauga County, while Cleveland was expected to have eight inches before the storm subsided. Akron had six inches.

Today, as the storm center moved eastward, Ohio was to experience cold and windy weather with occasional light snow. Dry and colder weather is in store for tonight and Sunday, except for some snow flurries in the extreme northeast counties.

Early Saturday morning temperatures included Cleveland 22, Toledo 21, Columbus 24 and Cincinnati 26.

The storm, described by a utility spokesman as the "worst in the history of the company" felled an estimated 3,000 electric lines overnight and deprived some 80,000 customers of service in and around greater Cincinnati. That number is approximately 20 percent of the firm's service load.

Jerry Hurter, director of public relations for the Cincinnati Gas & Electric Company, said 100 trouble crews were in the field, but that service would not be restored to some outlying areas before nightfall.

Business Briefs

During the next school year, 54 outstanding seniors in colleges of agriculture located throughout North America and in the United States territorial possessions will again be completing their undergraduate work with the assistance of the Ralston Purina Scholarship Program.

The $500 Purina Scholarship is awarded to one deserving incoming senior at each of the 50 United States land grant colleges. It is also awarded in three Canadian agricultural colleges and in one college in Puerto Rico.

The student selected to receive the scholarship is recommended by a scholarship committee consisting of faculty members of the college.

This will be the eighth year of the Purina Scholarships. During the first seven years, the program has assisted 367 students to finish their senior year.

Letters have been sent by the Ralston Purina Co. to all the eligible colleges offering the 1962-63 scholarships, according to an announcement by J. D. Sykes, Purina vice president. The faculty committee chooses the recipient on the basis of his scholastic record, and eligibility for financial assistance.

Kennedy Refuses Red Summit Bid

PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP)—President Kennedy is reported to have formally turned down Soviet Premier Khrushchev's latest demand for a summit meeting to open next month's disarmament conference in Geneva.

The President's reply was expected to reach the U. S. Embassy in Moscow today for relay to the Kremlin. The U. S. government probably will make it public in a day or two.

In Washington, it was understood that Kennedy again had urged Khrushchev to agree to a meeting of U.S., British and Soviet foreign ministers a few days in advance of the Geneva meeting, probably March 10.

Khrushchev's summit proposal was rejected informally earlier this week by the State Department. Kennedy was reported Friday night to have given approval to a formal rejection.

He had had some time earlier to study a translation of Khrushchev's proposal.

In his 2,500-word declaration, Khrushchev hewed to the Soviet line that disarmament was such an important subject only chiefs of state should tackle it. Accordingly, in tougher terms than before, he called on Kennedy and British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan to reconsider their decision against a summit meeting to open the 18-nation disarmament conference in Geneva March 14.

Kennedy and Macmillan have said they favor starting the conference at the foreign ministers level, with a summit session to be held later if real progress developed.

Kennedy and Macmillan were reported in Washington to have discussed by telephone their reply to Khrushchev. It was considered likely that Macmillan's reply also was going out this weekend.

There was some indication in Washington that Macmillan feared Kennedy's reply would reflect U. S. toughening on the summit issue. Macmillan wished to avoid this.

Informants said the main concern of the two Western leaders now is to obtain from Khrushchev a definitive reply to their proposal for opening negotiations at the foreign ministers level.

Kennedy took time out Friday from the heavier matters of state to help heap the nation's honors on Marine Lt. Col. John H. Glenn Jr., the first American to fly in a space capsule around the globe.

Kennedy flew up to Cape Canaveral, Fla., to greet Glenn, look over the spacecraft from which the astronaut rode a roaring rocket aloft, and bestow a medal on him. Monday Kennedy, Glenn and the astronaut's family will fly to Washington and another massive welcome.

Kennedy and Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson flew separately to Palm Beach after the President had seen Glenn. Kennedy and Johnson, who is head of the President's Advisory Council on Space, lunched together and discussed the U. S. space program.

WATER IN ASHVILLE — Plenty of water abounded in the northeast section of Ashville following last night's surge of rainfall. About eight inches covered the lawn of this home along Circleville Ave. The impact has prompted residents of the area to press for a proposed new sewer line.

Sewer Line Need Eyed

Ashville Area Hit By Storm Impact

Ashville's northeast residential section was hard hit by last night's 1.51 inches of freezing rain.

The village, currently debating a storm sewer project for the area, affected, was faced with a surplus of water last night. The basements of at least seven homes along Circleville Ave. were flooded. Pools of water in several lawns measured about eight inches deep.

Residents of the area presently are discussing the Pickaway County, Ashville, Teays Valley Storm Sewer District General Plan as a possible remedy for the flooding. Cost of the project has been estimated at $68,000. The project would be financed by assessments on benefitted property owners.

According to sponsors of the sewer plan, rapid growth of the village, especially in the northeast section, has created real drainage difficulties. The current construction of the new Teays Valley High School in the same area has prompted additional problems, they added.

THE PROPOSED sewer project would service the new high school which is scheduled for opening this coming school term.

Backers of the project said the new sewer line would start with a 27-inch main and extend to a 36-inch outlet which would follow the Circleville - Lockbourne - Eastern Road south to Walnut Creek. They said the plan would serve as a relief valve for the village's entire sewage system, both storm and sanitary.

Spokesmen said Ashville east of Park St. is the section most affected by the contemplated sewer project. Most of the assessments would be drawn from this residential area, they noted.

Residents of the area said last night's storm was mild compared to other heavy downpours of the past. They claimed that six or seven families usually are immediately affected by consistent rains and that additional homes face problems shortly after.

Several home owners pressed water pumps into service last night. Most of them were utilized for several hours.

Mayor Richard Bozman said the constant flooding results in indirect expenditures to the village due to damage to streets. He said most of the existing drainage depends on old four to six-inch field tile.

Circleville Student On Honorary List

Mrs. Sue Hammel McCrady, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Hammel, 531 S. Court, was one of 140 Capital University students on the Dean's List at the end of the first semester of the current school year.

To be eligible for this list, the highest attainment in scholarship at Capital, students must maintain at least a 3.4 average. The points are figured on four for "A", three for "B", two for "C" and one for "D".

Mrs. McCrady is a Sophomore in nursing.

Red China Says U.S. Threatens Its Security

Yank Military Aid To South Viet Nam Comes under Fire

TOKYO (AP)—Peiping charged today that U. S. military support of South Viet Nam seriously affected the security of Red China and Communist North Viet Nam and threatened the peace of Asia.

The United States "is already in an undeclared war in South Viet Nam," Peiping said in a statement broadcast by the New China news agency.

Peiping denounced what it called the armed U. S. intervention in South Viet Nam.

"This state of affairs cannot be allowed to continue," the Peiping statement said. "The Chinese (Communist) government holds that the cochairmen of the 1954 Geneva Conference and the countries concerned must promptly hold consultations and take appropriate measures to eliminate the serious danger of war in southern Viet Nam."

Peiping said, "Recently, the United States of America has become more and more bold and unscrupulous in its intervention and aggression in southern Viet Nam."

The statement called on the United States "to stop at once its armed intervention in South Viet Nam and immediately withdraw all its military men and equipment there."

Peiping said, "The armed U.S. imperialist intervention and aggression in southern Viet Nam constitutes a direct threat to the security of North Viet Nam and 'it also seriously affects the security of (Communist) China and the peace of Asia.'"

The United States has about 4,000 troops in South Viet Nam to train and supply the pro-Western government of President Ngo Dinh Diem. The Americans are not regarded as combat forces but have orders to shoot back if fired upon. They go on some military missions with South Vietnamese units as advisers.

Peiping said the new U.S. "military assistance command marks the beginning of a new stage in the armed U.S. intervention in southern Viet Nam."

"This command," it said, "is by no means merely one for military assistance, but an operation at command of the U.S. imperialists for direct participation."

"The United States has openly indicated that U.S. military men will shoot back if shot at. This shows in fact that the United States is already in an 'undeclared' war in southern Viet Nam."

The Peiping Foreign Ministry also accused the Kennedy administration of "preparing for waging three kinds of wars — nuclear war, conventional war and 'special warfare' — since its assumption of power acting on the will of the big U.S. monopoly groups."

Firemen Summoned To Minor Blaze

Circleville Firemen were called to a vacant home on Weldon Ave. at 3:27 p. m. yesterday to douse a minor interior blaze.

Firemen said rags burning caused only minor damage. They said the fire possibly was started by children playing in the house.

According to firemen, the home is owned by a Jones family.

Berger Treats Child for Burns

A two-year-old child received treatment for severe burns yesterday in the emergency room at Berger Hospital.

Michael Glover, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Gover, 733 S. Scioto St., was treated for first and second degree burns of the face, arms, abdomen and right knee after falling against a bathroom stove. He was treated and released.

Robert Melbin, 20, Route 3, was treated for contusions of the left shoulder after slipping on the ice at his home.

Donald Brokaw, 23, Adelphi, was treated for flash burns of both eyes following an accident while working at Anderson's Garage near Laureville.

Southwest ...

less than 450 feet.

One death was reported which could possibly be attributed to the storm.

In Lima a truck driver said he did not see 12-year-old Jimmy Eberle run into a street. The youngster, however, was first struck by a car and knocked under the wheels of the truck.

No other serious accidents or injuries were reported.

Clinton County was among the hardest hit in the ice-coated southwestern area. The hospital in Wilmington lost its power for several hours after electricity went out, but operated by an auxiliary system. Blanchester was blacked out all night and many other communities were dark for hours.

The ice even stopped trains in eastern Clermont County. The power failures cut off automatic signals and the trains came to a halt. Later operation was restored at a slow pace under manual signaling.

Falling electric lines also stopped several high school basketball games abruptly when gymnasiums suddenly were blacked out.

North of Ohio's U.S. 40 belt high winds sent the heavy snowfall drifting severely.

Traffic on the Ohio Turnpike was placed under a 40 m.p.h. speed but the toll road remained open.

Many other routes in the northern counties, however, became impassable and motorists were stranded by the scores.

A 10-inch snowfall was reported in Geauga County, while Cleveland was expected to have eight inches before the storm subsided. Akron had six inches.

Today, as the storm center moved eastward, Ohio was to experience cold and windy weather with occasional light snow. Dry and colder weather is in store for tonight and Sunday, except for some snow flurries in the extreme northeast counties.

Early Saturday morning temperatures included Cleveland 22, Toledo 21, Columbus 24 and Cincinnati 26.

The storm, described by a utility spokesman as the "worst in the history of the company" felled an estimated 3,000 electric lines overnight and deprived some 80,000 customers of service in and around greater Cincinnati. That number is approximately 20 per cent of the firm's service load.

Jerry Hurter, director of public relations for the Cincinnati Gas & Electric Company, said 100 trouble crews were in the field, but that service would not be restored to some outlying areas before nightfall.

Business Briefs

Durin the next school year, 54 outstanding seniors in colleges of agriculture located throughout North America and in the United States territorial possessions will again be completing their undergraduate work with the assistance of the Ralston Purina Scholarship Program.

The $500 Purina Scholarship is awarded to one deserving incoming senior at each of the 50 United States land grant colleges. It is also awarded in three Canadian agricultural colleges and in one college in Puerto Rico.

The student selected to receive the scholarship is recommended by a scholarship committee consisting of faculty members of the college.

This will be the eighth year of the Purina Scholarships. During the first seven years, the program has assisted 367 students to finish their senior year.

Letters have been sent by the Ralston Purina Co. to all the eligible colleges offering the 1962-63 scholarships, according to an announcement by J. D. Sykes, Purina vice president. The faculty committee chooses the recipient on the basis of his scholastic record, and eligibility for financial assistance.

Kennedy Refuses Red Summit Bid

PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP)—President Kennedy is reported to have formally turned down Soviet Premier Khrushchev's latest demand for a summit meeting to open next month's disarmament conference in Geneva.

The President's reply was expected to reach the U. S. Embassy in Moscow today for relay to the Kremlin. The U. S. government probably will make it public in a day or two.

In Washington, it was understood that Kennedy again had urged Khrushchev to agree to a meeting of U.S., British and Soviet foreign ministers a few days in advance of the Geneva meeting, probably March 10.

Khrushchev's summit proposal was rejected informally earlier this week by the State Department. Kennedy was reported Friday night to have given approval to a formal rejection.

He had had some time earlier to study a translation of Khrushchev's proposal.

In his 2,500-word declaration, Khrushchev heaved to the Soviet line that disarmament was such an important subject only chiefs of state should tackle it. Accordingly, in tougher terms than before, he called on Kennedy and British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan to reconsider their decision against a summit meeting to open the 18-nation disarmament conference in Geneva March 14.

Kennedy and Macmillan have said they favor starting the conference at the foreign ministers level, with a summit session to be held later if real progress developed.

Kennedy and Macmillan were reported in Washington to have discussed by telephone their reply to Khrushchev. It was considered likely that Macmillan's reply also was going out this weekend.

There was some indication in Washington that Macmillan feared Kennedy's reply would reflect U. S. toughening on the summit issue. Macmillan wished to avoid this.

Informants said the main concern of the two Western leaders now is to obtain from Khrushchev a definitive reply to their proposal for opening negotiations at the foreign ministers level.

Kennedy took time out Friday from the heavier matters of state to help heap the nation's honors on Marine Lt. Col. John H. Glenn Jr., the first American to fly in a space capsule around the globe.

Kennedy flew up to Cape Canaveral, Fla., to greet Glenn, look over the spacecraft from which the astronaut rode a roaring rocket aloft, and bestow a medal on him. Monday Kennedy, Glenn and the astronaut's family will fly to Washington and another massive welcome.

Kennedy and Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson flew separately to Palm Beach after the President had seen Glenn. Kennedy and Johnson, who is head of the President's Advisory Council on Space, lunched together and discussed the U. S. space program.

Though hummingbirds range from Alaska to South America's tip, more than half the world's 319 known species inhabit Ecuador.
